BABE RUTH BREAKS DOWN AS HE REACHES SICK WIFE'S BEDSIDE

New York, Sept. 1 (A.P.).—More penitent than belligerent, Babe Ruth returned to New York today and immediately extended the olive branch to Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner, and Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, who suspended and fined the former home run king $5,000 for "misconduct off the field."

Still insisting that he had been "treated badly," but less heated than he was in the West, after sustaining the first shock of discipline, Ruth arranged a conference with Colonel Ruppert and announced he would make every effort to adjust the situation.

"I'm sorry I said I would quit the Yankees if Huggins didn't and that I wouldn't play under him any more," said the Babe. "I was hot under the collar when I said that. I still don't think I can do my best under him, but I want to stay with New York.

"I am willing to meet Huggins

COAL BOOST PLOT IS CHARGED BY MINERS

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 1.—Anthracite mining in Pennsylvania was at a complete standstill today.

Reports reaching the miners headquarters at the Bellevue Stratford hotel here today indicate that 148,000 miners answered the strike call issued by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America last week, when miners representatives and owners failed to come to an agreement on the new wage contract. The old wage contract between the miners and operators expired at midnight last night.

Mine leaders say that the suspension was 100 per cent effective. A force of 10,000 miners remained at work as maintenance men, as agreed.

Lewis, just before the hour for the miners to cease work issued a statement in which he assailed the stand taken by the operators.

FINDS WOMAN'S BODY IN LAKE AT WELLESLEY

Mary Parnell, employed at the home of Joseph Schaller in Brooks street, Wellesley, went out Sunday night.

She didn't return, but today Harry Morrison, who is employed at Wellesley College, found her body in Lake Waban. She was about thirty years of age, and, according to her employers and those who knew her, had no reason for self-destruction.

The police were called and after recovering the body found her pocketbook empty on the shore.

BABE'S LITTLE GIRL HAPPY AT FARM

While Babe Ruth appeals in New York against his fine and suspension and Mrs. Ruth in New York grills the King of Swat about comely widows and other romances, little Dorothy, their daughter, at the Ruth farm in Sudbury, calmly goes along enjoying herself as only a child can, unaware of the whole tangle. Here she is in two poses, dusting the front steps and plucking a flower.

FLAG PLANE, ALONE, HUMS HAWAII-WARD

San Francisco, Sept. 1 (I.N.S.)—While the flagship of the United States Navy's California-to-Hawaii flight hurtled onward this morning on its 2,100-mile dash across the Pacific, a night of anxiety was ended by announcement that plane No. 2 was safe. The third plane, the PN9 No. 2, which was forced down 300 miles off the Golden Gate, was safely in tow of the destroyer William Jones and is being brought back to San Francisco.

Plane No. 1 at 6:10 this morning (Pacific Coast time) had passed the 1,200-mile ship, which would be the

ROCKEFELLER TOPS LIST; FULLER LEVY $50,358; SOME CUTS

With John D. Rockefeller, Jr., heading the list for $6,277,669, representatives of the Treasury Department today made public the names of prominent persons and their Federal income tax returns throughout the country.

Rockefeller's father paid only $128,420, while the Ford interests made returns of more than $20,000,000.

Henry Ford's personal tax was $2,608,808.65, and that of his son Edsel $2,158,053.99. Their company paid $16,493,160.81, about $2,000,000 more than the previous year, although personal taxes were lower.

HEAVY CUTS RECORDED.

The returns were featured by tremendous cuts, some of the most widely known business men of the country, because of business and investment losses, paying nothing.

One of the most sensational reductions was in the return of William Wrigley, Jr., the chewing gum king.

Federal income tax returns, made public today at the local bureau of internal revenue, show that President Coolidge paid $14,091.86 for 1925, as compared to $6,643.01 for the previous year.

Governor Fuller's return also jumped from $45,104.28 for 1924 to $50,358.98, while the return of ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald showed an increase of more than $9,000. His return this year was $9,491.56 as compared to $246.90 last year.

Senator Frederick H. Gillett paid less this year than he did last, the figures being $1,806.45 for 1924 and $921.65 this year.

Mayor Curley paid no tax this year or last.

Congressman James A. Gallivan

THIEVES ENTER HOME OF GOVERNOR FULLER

Governor Fuller's residence in Malden and at Little Boar's Head, N. H., seem to hold a peculiar fascination for burglars.

For the second time within a year the Governor's home on Appleton street, in the Belmont Hill section of Malden, was entered by marauders who broke windows in the first floor, kitchen and the cellar.

Captain John Aylward sent a squad of officers to the house. He also notified the Governor who dispatched his secretary to Malden to investigate the break.

SHOT FIRED AS HUB TONGS REOPEN WAR

A single revolver shot, echoing through Oxford place in the heart of Chinatown, signalled a renewal of the war of the Chinese tongs today.

It was fired by a thoroughly Americanized oriental in American store clothes at an equally dapper Chinese, who ran away.

The bullet missed its mark, according to the white men who happened to be in the place and talked with the police. Chinese witnesses were as secretive as they usually are when in contact with the white man's law.

The shot caused consternation among the white residents of the district and brought Captain Herbert W. Goodwin and the riot squad from Lagrange street station into Oxford place on the run.

But when they arrived the district was quiet, and bland Chinese went and came about their business and professed never to have heard the shot that caused the excitement.

The crowded houses of Chinese in Hudson and Tyler streets were searched and it was indicated several would be arrested as suspicious persons.

of South Boston paid only $11.85 in 1925, a decrease over last year when his return was $44.26, while former U. S. Senator David I. Walsh paid $158.11 this year.

BUTLER PAYS $17,790.

Louis K. Liggett, the nationally known druggist, paid a tax of $17,-790.83, and William A. Gaston, Boston banker, $7,240.04, as compared to $43,912.42 last year.

Senator William M. Butler paid $17,790.69, and Frank Stearns $43,-156.68, both men being rated as advisers to the President.

Charles H. Innes, well-known Boston attorney, paid $7,018 in 1925, as against $3,220.78 last year.

Joseph P. Kennedy, banker son-in-law of Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald, paid $8,946.36 this year, a big increase, his last year's figures being $336.42.

John J. Kennedy, butter and egg dealer, paid $21,878.37, as compared to only $853.21 in 1924.

MOSELEY A BIG ONE.

One of the big local returns was made by Frederick S. Moseley, the banker, who paid $15,886.51 as against only $367.83 last year. Joseph P. Manning, well-known cigar manufacturer, paid $4,081.29 in 1926 and only $736.16 in 1924.

A tax return of $19.66 was made by Max Keezer, clothing dealer, while Demarest Lloyd, publicist as he is registered, paid $43,383.86. Last year Lloyd's return was $64,468.03.

Bishop Lawrence's return for 1925 was $803.33, as compared to $1,017.24 last year, while A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard University, made a return of $55,567.11, a big increase over last year when he paid $18,574.95.

A return of $1,336.56 was made by Robert G. Larsen, manager of Keith's Theatre, and Bernard Jenney, manufacturer, paid $12,672.92, as compared to $58,809.53.

Dr. Frank L. Lahey's return for 1925 was $4,851.13, and for 1924 was $1,493.11.

Martin M. Lomasney, colorful political leader, paid $4,917.27 while Francis Lee Higginson, Jr., made a return of $130,052.76. The estate of Francis Lee Higginson, Sr., last year non-taxable, this year paid $2,232.99.

HAYWARD TAX DROPS.

Robert F. Herrick, prominent attorney, who was one of the defendants in the $1,000,000 Willett-Sears trial in Dedham, made a return of only $3,537.22 this year as compared to $61,778.35 in 1924.

Claude M. Hart, hotel man, paid $2,434.46 in 1925, and $2,119.72 last year.

The return of William E. Hayward was $49,625.35 last year, but this year he paid $12,164.19.

ALBIANI'S TAX DROPS.

Judge George W. Anderson of the Federal Court paid $4156, and Lieutenant-Governor Frank G. Allen's return was $46,462.90, as compared to $22,734.26 last year.

Antonio Albiani, restaurant man, made a return of $1,132.90 his last year's figure being $2,669.81.

The return of Hugh Bancroft, attorney, was $7,939.34, as against $16,-135.40 last year. Elizabeth Eaton Bell of Wakefield made a return of $5,502.46, a considerable drop from 1924, when she paid $13,139.03.

Thornton W. Burgess, author of the famous "Bedtime Stories," paid $4,492.54, while Ray Stannard Baker, the journalist, was credited with only $810.56.

The naval architect, W. Starling Burgess, paid only $77.09, and Alice Stone Blackwell $48.32. Postmaster Roland M. Baker's return was $91.01 and that of Robert Paine Bigelow, biologist, $35.98.

WEEK'S PAY $6,901.

Clarence W. Barron, proprietor of the Boston News Bureau, made a return of $48,349.40 and Lyman W. Besse paid $86,067.06.

One of the largest of the local returns was made by William M. Wood, former head of the American Woolen Company, who paid $239,-271.20, as compared to $563,442.94.

Sherman L. Whipple, prominent attorney paid $24,684.99 an increase over last year when his return was $14,830.84.

Robert Winsor, Boston banker and also a defendant in the Willett-Sears suit, paid $28,532.85 this year as against $19,265.44 in 1924.

Secretary of War John W. Weeks made a return of $6,901.05, John K. Whiting, milk dealer, paid $2,359.29 and Sidney W. Winslow, Jr., $35,-108.42.

"Gum King's" Tax Drops From $836,585 to $2,644

Chicago, Sept. 1 (AP)—A vast decrease in some classes of income tax returns is indicated in lists of payments made by a hundred or more prominent Chicagoans, published today in the Chicago Tribune and the Herald and Examiner.

Many taxpayers in the higher brackets availed themselves of various legal and permissible expedients for avoiding burdensome payments, it was thought.

The largest tax paid by those listed in the newspapers came from L. L. Cooke, chief engineer and head of the Chicago Engineering Works, a correspondence school. His return was $300,767, and that of Mrs. L. L. Cooke $92,710.

The largest reduction published by the newspapers was that of William Wrigley, Jr., the chewing gum manufacturer, whose 1925 taxes were listed at $2,644, as against $836,585 for 1924, a figure far above any other individual amount in the Chicago district.

Representatives of Mr. Wrigley explained the new revenue act enabled auditors to write off certain losses suffered by him dating as far back as 1918. Among the various companies in which he is a dominant figure have not been published.

In some cases material increases were shown in 1925 payments over those of last year.

SAILOR FINED FOR "Y" GUM SLOT THEFT

Walter W. Rhode, twenty, a sailor attached to the U. S. S. Florida, was arrested by Patrolman John J. Carroll of the Charlestown police station in City square, Charlestown, following a struggle, charged with larceny of a gum slot from the Naval Y. M. C. A. in Charlestown. Officer Carroll saw him walking along the street with a bundle under his arm and inquired what the sailor was carrying, and the latter replied that it was none of his business. In the mixup the slot fell in the street and the contents of the gum were strewn about the square. In court today Judge Sullivan found Rhode guilty and imposed a fine of $25.

AWARD CONTRACTS FOR OUT-PATIENT BUILDING

Contracts war awarded today at City Hall for the construction of a new outpatient department for the Boston Tuberculosis Sanitorium, the main buildings of which are on River street, Mattapan.

The new outpatient department will be housed in a four-story building to be erected at Concord street and Harrison avenue, opposite the outpatient department of the Boston City Hospital. The cost will be approximately $170,000.

Contract for the building was awarded to John B. Doian Company, $156,400; for elevators, to the Bay State Elevator Company, $4,881, and for electrical fixtures to the Federal Electrical Company, $3,895.

WILL SEE MAYOR ABOUT COUNSEL APPROPRIATION

The subject of an appropriation for legal advice to the City Council in regard to its powers to take action toward establishing a municipal lighting plant in Boston will be discussed with Mayor Curley next Tuesday noon, according to announcement today by Councilor James A. Watson, chairman of the council executive committee.

The special sub-committee appointed to recommend attorneys, Watson said, has agreed on the names of lawyers considered competent to serve as advisers.

CAPTURE THREE BOYS AT RESTAURANT BREAK

Three Charlestown boys were rounded up today in East Somerville after it is alleged they had broken into a restaurant and store at 9 350 Mystic avenue. One boy was captured in the store by Patrolmen Earle W. Elliott, while Patrolman LeRoy V. Pierce fired two shots after the other two lads, who fled through a field.

The officers went back with their prisoner to a garage and got a machine and drove through the section, picking up one of the boys on Broadway, while the third boy was captured by John Gillispie on Mystic avenue. One hundred and fifty three packages of cigarettes were found on the ground outside of the store and were taken with the youthful prisoners to the police station. They gave the names of William Exley, 14 of No. 459 Main street; John J. Canty, 14, No. 57 Chappie street and John J. Soanell, 13, of No. 54 Belmont street, all of Charlestown.

Coolidge Will Move to Stop Tax Publicity

Swampscott, Sept. 1 (A.P.)—President Coolidge is convinced that the publicity provisions of the tax law should be repealed and it was indicated today at White Court that in December he would renew his recommendation to Congress for their abolition.

Coincident with the making public of income tax returns it was indicated here officially that the President believes this requirement of law interferes with the collection of revenue and works to the detriment of the government.

PRESIDENT PAYS $14,091 AND FORDS $20,000,000

who paid only $2,664 as compared to $836,585 last year. This year's low figure was said to have been due to the income tax clause which permits deductions for losses dating as far back as 1914.

Thomas W. Lament of the firm of J. P. Morgan paid $486,741 and his wife $81,630. J. Pierpont Morgan's tax was $574,379.

MORGAN PAYS MORE.

Max D. Steuer, the New York lawyer, paid $138,455, while Clarence Darrow, chief defence counsel in the Scopes trial, and in the Loeb-Leopold trial, paid $3,900 or $711 more than in 1924.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., paid the largest amount of any individual, but his tax was smaller than last year, which amounted to $7,435,169. His father's was also smaller, being $4,006 less than last year, while J. P. Morgan's took a big jump, his tax in 1923 being $93,643.

Richard Barthelmess, movie actor, paid $24,803.93, but Douglas Fairbanks had a bigger income in 1924 than any other screen player, according to his returns. He headed the tax payments of the screen colony with $182,190.45.

Otto H. Kahn paid $391,778 compared with $184,863 for 1923, and Frank D. Waterman, Republican candidate for Mayor of New York in the coming election, paid $7,885 for 1924.

MELLON'S TAX HEAVY

The taxes of the F. W. Woolworth Company for 1924 were $2,536,942 and Andrew W Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury of the United States made a return of $1,882,609.26. His brother, Richard Mellon paid $1,180,-099.66.

James Montgomery Flagg, the artist made a return of $4,383.

Taxes paid by eight Vanderbilt individuals and estates totalled $275,-939, compared with $319,467 the previous year. The estate of Cornelius Vanderbilt, which paid $16,884 in 1923 made payments of $16,883 for 1924.

Reginald G. Vanderbilt, who paid $5,819 for 1923, paid $44,056 for last year. The estate of the late William K. Vanderbilt paid $402,209 for 1924, with no figures given for 1923.

E. H. Gary paid $322,689, and former Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, $7,584.

DUKES PAY HIGH

Simon Guggenheim made a return of $231,000, the Fleischmann Yeast Company's tax was $1,830,166, and Mary L. Barbee, a woman broker in Wall Street paid $111,020.

James Stillman Rockefeller's payment was $6,751 and William A. Rockefeller's was $6,178. Waldorf Astor paid $70,201 and E. T. Bedford, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) $235,390.

James B. Duke, former president of the American Tobacco Company, paid an income tax of $641,250; Dodrie Duke, a member of his family, paid $262,421, and Nanaline H. Duke $161,378.

John W. Davis, Democratic presidential candidate in the last election, paid taxes of $49,583, and George Eastman, kodak king and Rochester, N. Y., philanthropist, paid $79,604.45.

KRESGE $188,068.

The General Motors Corporation paid a tax estimated to be made than $6,500,000; the Fisher brothers, Charles T., Fred J. and Lawrence, paid a total tax of more than $1,-000,000.

Sebastian S. Kresge, millionaire chain ten-cent store operator, paid $188,068.16.

Edwin Denby, former Secretary of the Navy, claimed exemption, and Senator James Couzens, Detroit multi-millionaire, paid a little more than $1,200, his holdings being mostly non-taxable, it is said.

Mrs. Anna Thompson Dodge, widow of Horace E. Dodge, automobile manufacturer, was high on the list with $993,028.48.

Other payments were: Payne Whitney, $1,676,626; Mortimer L. Schiff, $459,410; Clarence Dillon, broker, $87,484; J. H. Wigan, banker, $204,013; Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, $2,060,862; National Biscuit Company, $2,046,807; Ed Wynn, actor, $1,235; Al Jolson, comedian, $33,744; William H. Harkness, $134,136.

ASTOR INCOMES BIG.

John Jacob Astor, $70,201; Lionel Atwill, actor, $1,165; George W. Fynchon, broker, $106,327.

Thomas F. Ryan, $791,851; Vincent Astor, $842,800; Frederick W. Vanderbilt, $793,986; Henry W. Taft, $56,506; P. A. S. Franklin, steamship man, $30,884; estate of the late Charles F. Murphy, Tammany leader, $717.

Edward N. Hurley, former shipping board head, who last year paid $48,187, this year made a return of $136,931.

ZION CITY HEAD PAYS.

An increase of $4,147 was reported paid by Charles H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central Railroad, while John R. Thompson, head of the chain restaurant concern, and Charles W. Gray, manager of a nationally known taxicab company with headquarters in Chicago, paid nothing.

John Hertz, taxicab and motorbus manufacturer, ran second to Wrigley in the amount of decrease. In 1925 he paid $8,316, while last year his payment was $169,357.

A. D. Lasker, former shipping board chairman, paid $122,004. Mrs. A. D. Lasker paid $44,429.

William Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, paid $16,100.

Hurschie Miller, frequently questioned in connection with beer runners' war and bootlegging investigations in Chicago, $2,240, while Robert E. Crowe, State's attorney who prosecuted Leopold and Loeb, paid $75.

DAWES PAYS $24,824

United States Senator Hiram Bingham of New Havan paid only $4,91 while his wife paid $16,086.73. United States Senator George F. McLean of Simsbury, Conn., paid $14,088.41 and Edward J. Pearson, president of the New Haven railroad, made a return of $12,426.02.

Vice-President Charles G. Dowes paid $24,824 and Charles A. Comiskey owner of the White Sox, $8,084.

An unusual feature of the returns of the screen stars was the fact that Charlie "Patty" Arbuckle, regarded as nearly penniless, paid a bigger tax than Valentino, Wallace Beery, Lon Chaney, Monte Blue, Hobart Bosworth, Reginald Denny, Buster Keaton, Barbara LaMarr, Ramon Novarro and Charles Ray.

2-Cent Income Tax Paid by Hub Woman

Freaks crop up in the income tax payment lists, just as they do anywhere else, and these are a few dug up today:

Margaret B. Chamberlain of Chestnut Hill is assessed a tax of two cents, but the supposition is that she paid it all in one lump sum, and not in quarterly instalments.

The tax of Fred E. Walker of Taunton reached the total of a nice shiny nickel.

Constituting a lucky—or unlucky—duet, whichever way you look at it, Irving Singer of Dorchester and William Anderson of Winthrop are down for a tax of $13.13 each, the unlucky feature bobbing up should the payments slip.

Gallivan in War On Wilbur

A small war against Secretary of the Navy Wilbur and his department was put to simmer on the fire today by Congressman James A. Callivan in connection with the new threat to close the Boston Navy Yard.

When the proposed closing seeped up from Washington, the Congressman made immediate inquiry of Secretary Wilbur, asking if there was any truth in the report.

In his communication, Congressman Callivan included an information that both he and his colleague, Congressman Tinkham, are members of the Committee on Appropriations and would have a word on appropriations in the coming Congress.

Today the navy secretary replied, stating:

"I do not feel free to discuss the proposition with reference to the Boston navy yard. The newspaper articles referred to did not emanate from the department and no authoritative statement will be made on that subject by the Navy Department.

"We advised the Bureau of Budget concerning the proposed allocation. The Bureau of Budget has not made its final allocation to the department and will not do so until after hearings upon the figures presented by the department."

Congressman Gallivan then tossed down the gauntlet.

"I am not satisfied with the secretary's answer," he said. "Wilbur tells us nothing worth while. However, I do not propose to sit idly by and see the partisans get square with President Coolidge for some of the economical changes he has seen fit to make. Secretary Wilbur will hear from us again."

THOSE THAT keep track of what goes on, are busy.

An army of 158,000 miners, stop work and start a fight against capital employing them. Tens of thousands of other workmen suffer indirectly.

We talk about joining a league of nations to end war. It would be better to end the industrial war inside of our own nation.

CAILLAUX WILL soon arrive to discuss with Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, the French war debt settlement. Caillaux expects to stay ten days here and go back with everything settled. After he meets Mellon and Coolidge he will carry back new information about what Europe likes to call "Cold Americans."

"BABE" RUTH, more important to millions of Americans than all Europe, Asia and Africa combined, is dropped from baseball, fined $5000 for misbehavior.

If Henry Ford gave up automobiles or the Rockefeller family said good-bye to oil forever, the news would not be more startling.

THE YOUNG American, Gertrude Ederle, again will try to swim the English Channel, and probably succeed.

Those who know that a human imitation of a sea otter is not important, will watch the effort of two United States seaplanes to go from California to Honolulu in one "hop." That is important.

THE NEXT generation will read about "the navy, patrolling the route," to save the fliers if necessary, and that will seem as strange as to send an automobile with a carrier pigeon in case it should fall down.

THIS COUNTRY witnesses its first Bolshevik funeral in a New York undertaker's "chapel." Ephriam Skbiansky and his friend Isiah J. Hoorgin, both accidentally drowned, were buried in the Russian way, with piles of red flowers and playing of the "Russian Revolution Funeral March."

No mention of religion.

THE CORPSES with the red flowers were taken to the crematory, the ashes sent to Moscow. No clergyman was there to mollify the cosmic powers that two more souls were on their way to be judged.

It might "interest" Moscow if Skiransky could come back to his ashes and make a speech on the things he has learned about government since he left here.

EARNEST FUNDAMENTALISTS who abhor the suggestion that there is anything of the animal in "man made in the image of his Creator," might consider the case of Mrs. Adelina Pagila. According to the police story her husband left her so, for revenge, she turned against her two-year-old girl. She bit the child's leg in several places and beat her so severely that she is in danger of death. Not much of divinity but very much of the animal in that.

ENGLAND WILL spend $43,-000,000 for electrical development, $150,000,000 to bring the British telephone system up to date. In telephones, the world can learn from the United States. Look at a map of North and South America. Continued on Page 6, Column 6.

'VAGRANT' DOCTOR CAN'T RECALL BANK HOLDING HIS FORTUNE

CLAIMS $75,000 IN BONDS LEFT HIM BY FATHER

Somewhere in a Boston bank repose $75,000 worth of United States bonds while their owner, Dr. John J. MacMahon, 79-year-old graduate of Harvard Medical School, is held for vagrancy at the Charles street jail.

Privation and sickness combined to becloud the memory of the once prosperous practitioner, and today, in the presence of Boston Evening American reporter he fumbled through a mixed-up collection of memoranda scattered on his cell cot in an effort to locate his lost fortune.

"My father, James MacMahon," mumbled the feeble "vagrant," told me on his death bed of the gilt-edged bonds placed in trust for me, but at that time I had a flourishing practice and gave his gift slight thought.

COUPONS UNCLIPPED.

"Eighteen years have passed since then and I never clipped a coupon. Now, today, I am in poverty, unable to locate that fortune."

Awaiting court disposition of his case on Thursday the once wealthy Harvard man is now forced to wear prison clothes in the county jail.

His garments are, however, threadbare, his white shock of hair in need of trimming and his shirt and collar ready for a change.

With a flash of pride in his almost lustreless eyes the aged inmate of the narrow cell tremblingly extracted a well-worn bill fold from his inside coat pocket and passed to the reporter a letter nearly torn across its folds.

FRIEND OF SENATOR LODGE.

Its heading was the "U. S. Senate" and it was addressed to a member of King's Counsel in Dublin.

"I have known Dr. MacMahon, a graduate of Harvard Medical School, for many years," the letter ran, "and any favor you confer on him will be appreciated by me."

The missive was signed, "Henry Cabot Lodge."

Dr. MacMahon explained that he is heir to property in County Cavan, Ireland, and at the time the late Senator wrote the letter, he intended to apply to the Chancery Court in Dublin to establish his claim.

"The World War came then," the old man mused, "and at its close sickness fell upon me. I have never since been able to carry out my plans."

It was touching to listen to him reminisce about his college years, while he gazed apathetically at the iron bars around him.

DESERTED BY KIN.

"I never thought," he reflected, "that the sunset of my life would see me a pauper in a city jail.

"Relatives have not been overanxious about me and my daughter, Alma, although she is not in good health herself, having worked the skin off her bones to support me."

Dr. MacMahon mentioned several famous Boston surgeons who were classmates at Harvard Medical College in 1887 and expressed the hope that some of them, if the news of his plight came to their ears, might come to his assistance.

"Do all you can for me, an old man," he pleaded with the reporter, when he took leave of him, "you never can fathom the depth of suffering entailed in being deserted in old age."

CITY IS VICTORIOUS IN KRINSKY ACTION

The city government was victorious today in Supreme Court in an action brought by Hyman Krinsky, lessee of the Hotel Commodore, against the city, seeking an injunction against evicting him in connection with the Tremont street widening.

If the injunction were allowed, it might have held up the widening in that section of the thoroughfare, but Judge Walt denied the petition.

The city contended a petition filed by Krinsky in Superior Court claiming damages to his leasehold protects his interests fully.

NO COMPLAINT MADE AGAINST EVA MORRISON

No complaint is carried by the Revere police against Miss Eva Morrison, the girl who finished second in the Boston Light swim last Sunday. Miss Morrison may have had some difficulty with Mrs. William Johnson over the subject of Mayor Curley whose wife donated the cup that she won, but if she did the police know nothing officially about it.

All the police do say is that "Miss Morrison is a mighty fine girl and a champion swimmer." If Mrs. Johnson felt at all peeved toward Miss Morrison the journal of the police department fails to record a complaint and the officers have made no claims for action to the Chelsea District Court.

Miss Morrison herself asserts she did nothing to cause bother.

The wedding will be the culmination of a friendship begun when Goode was in Harvard andn Miss O'Connor, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. O'Connor, was a student at Simmons.

Goode, who is a former Crimson pitcher, will open a new office for his firm, Walter S. Place Company, No. 35 Congress street, brokers, in New York on his return from the wedding trip.

Mr. Goode is 26 years of age and Miss O'Connor is 25. Both were graduated in 1922.

FATHER BALKS GIRL'S SUICIDE ATTEMPTS

Lawrence, Sept. 1.—After receiving a letter of reprimand for wearing her woman employers' stockings, eighteen-year-old Yvonne Cafer twice attempted suicide at the home of her parents, No. 7 Essex court.

In each case the girl's act was prevented by her father, who then notified the police and she is being held for observation.

The police say the Yvonne had been subject to melancholia, and only a year ago returned from an institution. She was engaged as a mother's helper in the neighborhood, and last week in the absence of her employer, donned the woman's stockings.

The owner discovered it and wrote the girl a letter of reprimand, which she received yesterday. She then attempted to hang herself, and when prevented rushed to the window to throw herself out.

POPE RECEIVES 50 PROVIDENCE PILGRIMS

Rome, Sept. 1 (A.P.).—The Pope today received fifty holy year pilgrims of the Italian parish of St. Ann's of Providence, R. I., conducted by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Anthony Bove, pastor of the parish.

LEWIS CHARGES COAL BOOSTING PLOT

UNION HEAD ACCUSES OWNERS

the miners Lewis blamed the operators for the strike, asserting that "they have consistently refrained from any good faith attempt to negotiate an agreement."

He accused the mine owners of taking advantage of the public fear of a strike "to unload at enhanced prices a greatly augmented tonnage of coal of inferior quality."

Lewis added that the present policy of the operators is "considerate only of commercial profit; utterly ignoring the right of the anthracite mine workers to fair treatment and entirely devoid of any concern for the public interest."

To miners, Lewis continued, are prepared to wait until their demands will be given consideration.

"In the meantime," he said, "120 men who are mangled and butchered every eight hours in the collieries will be saved, to the great joy and satisfaction of their loved ones. In addition, two men who would be killed in the collieries each eight-hour week day will have their lives extended, which will lessen the number of mourning widows and weeping orphans."

In conclusion Lewis said that the public need have no fear of disorder in the coal communities because of the strike.

Coolidge Waits for Crisis Before He Will Act

With the hard coal supply of the nation crippled by the strike of 162,000 miners today, eyes of the nation are turned toward President Coolidge who has remained in the closest possible touch with the situation.

Friends and advisers of the President declare he is firm in his intention to retain a "hands-off" policy regarding the strike until such time arises that the shortage of fuel is likely to menace the comfort and safety of the people.

In case the strike is prolonged until the next session of Congress it is believed the President will present to that body the same recommendations he made in his inaugural address two years ago.

These recommendations will suggest Federal control of the distribution of coal from the mines to the States and control of prices, to make profiteering impossible.

The assignment of the 10,000 maintenance men, who return to the pits by mutual arrangement to man pumps and attend to the general upkeep during the suspension, was reported as having gone through without a hitch. The first of the three full shifts insisted upon by the union went down the shafts in time to relieve the night shift coming out.

The union made good its assurance it would not resort to picketing which, it explained, would be unnecessary in view of the effectiveness of the tieup. As the owners disclaim any present intention of trying to replace the diggers with imported help, the battle line was reported unusually quiet, considering the importance attributed to the struggle.

Coolidge Believes No Cause for Alarm

Swampscott, Sept. 1 (A.P.)—With the anthracite suspension in effect, President Coolidge was represented today at the Summer White House as of the belief there is no cause for alarm over a fuel supply unless buyers become panicky.

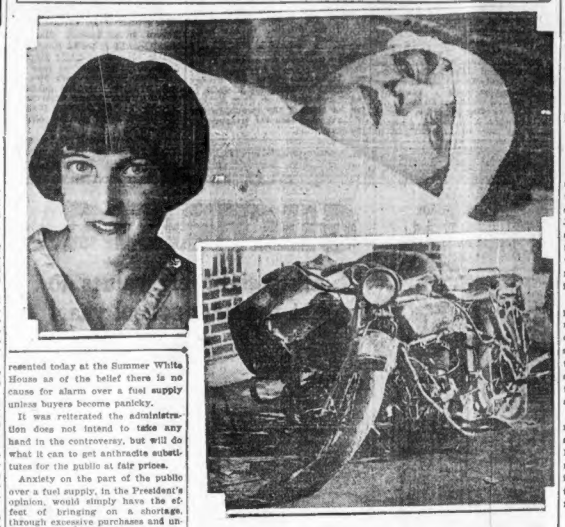
It was reiterated the administration does not intend to take any hand in the controversy, but will do what it can to get anthracite substitutes for the public at fair prices.

Anxiety on the part of the public over a fuel supply, in the President's opinion, would simply have the effect of bringing on a shortage, through excessive purchases and undoubtedly an increase in prices.

It was stated at White Court that President Coolidge still stands on his recommendation to Congress, based on the findings of the coal commission, that the President should have authority in the event of a threatened shutdown of coal mines to appoint a commission with power to determine the facts and present them to the public.

The President considers this the major point in the program which he laid down for dealing with the coal industry and it was indicated undoubtedly he would again recommend something of this nature at the December session of Congress.

CROSS SIGNALS! 7 IN HOSPITAL



A misunderstanding of signals is blamed for the collision between this motorcycle and a sedan on Bennington street, East Boston, near the Revere line, that sent these two girls and five other persons to the East Boston Relief Station. On left is Miss Marie Anderson of No. 597 Bennington street, one of the victims. On right, photographed in bed, is fifteen-year-old Esther Capello of No. 956 Saratoga street, who was hurled with her mother from the side car of the motorcycle. The mother, Mrs. Ethel, sixty years old, is in a dangerous condition. Twenty-year-old Henry Allem, operator of the cycle, is also at the hospital. Miss Anderson and the other occupants of the automobile, were less seriously injured. Lawrence McInnis of No. 460 Meridian street, driver of the auto, was uninjured.

AUTO MADE BY BOYS WRECKED BY TRAIN

When the "ratty old contraption" of an automobile, built from old parts by Richard Fowle and Albert Chamberlain, Needham schoolboys, was smashed to a thousand pieces when struck by a locomotive on the Rosemary street crossing, Needham, both lads escaped death when they leaped from their seats.

The "Molecule Motor" as the boys nicknamed the small machine stalled on the crossing directly in the path of the fast moving train.

Young Fowle yelled; "Jump!" to his companion and both boys fell in a heap on the grass of the roadside just as their motor car was turned into bits of iron, wood and steel.

WILL SEEK COUNCIL SEAT FROM WARD 6

Lee J. Halloran of No. 110 P street, South Boston, a lawyer, notified Election Commissioner Burke today that he will take out nomination blanks to run as a candidate for the City Council from Ward 6. Another candidate in the field is Charles T. Foley of No. 32 Westcott street, West Roxbury, in Ward 19. Foley was formerly president of the West Roxbury Citizens' Association.

Langley and which probably broadcast the message to the Manon, Matson liner, which relayed it.

At 4:40 a. m. No. 1 was taking compass bearings by radio from the U. S. S. Doyen, fifth of the ten guard ships strung at approximately 200-mile intervals between here and Honolulu.

This was practically according to schedule.

The finding of the PN9 No. 2, came after an all-night search.

The big flying companion of the PN9 No. 1 disappeared at 5:16 last night, when she passed over the destroyer William Jones, flying with the flagship.

She failed to be sighted as the No. 1 plane passed over the U. S. S. McCawley, 400 miles out, at 8:40 p.m.

The William Jones proceeded westward and the destroyer McCawley steamed slowly eastward, searching for the missing plane. Ceaseless'y their giant searchlights swept the ocean expanse. Finally, after hours of search, the Doyen came upon the missing plane about 10 miles west of the Doyen's guard station.

COP AND BRIDE ESCAPE CROWD AT CHURCH

Athol, Sept. 1.—Justice will be meted out to Policeman William Callahan some time in the future, even if he is a fugitive from it now—and there are some who say his bride will come in for it, too.

Callahan took a day off from policing to leave all but his best girl waiting at the church for his appearance to be married to the same girl.

Thoughtfully enough he had married the girl, so she was not among those who lingered nervously in the Church of Our Lady Immaculate, waiting for the nuptial mass to begin.

The marriage of Policeman Callahan and Miss Ruth A. McRae, a telephone girl, was set for 8 o'clock in the church, and at 7 o'clock the guests began to assemble.

They were armed with confetti, rice, shoes and sundries, all of which apparently had been expected by the coy bridegroom—especially the sundries.

Eight o'clock came, but no blushing bride and bridegroom. Nor did the expected priest arrive.

Some time after 8 o'clock someone thought to make inquiries. Then it was learned that the policeman had performed a coup together with the ceremony and had been married in the church at 6:45.

Now their friends have taken a firmer grip on their worses dispositions and are awaiting the return of the couple.

HOME ENTERED

cupy the Malden home, a comparatively small red brick house in a section of the city that was once considered as exclusively for wealthy residents. Malden's best known residents still live in the section, and the Governor and his wife love their home there.

Burglars entered the Fullers' Malden home about a year ago, through a broken cellar window and caused considerable damage. It was believed at first they were seeking valuable political documents and private papers belonging to the Governor.

The Fullers' Summer residence at Little Boar's Head, New Hampshire, was entered by thieves in May, 1925, and a large assortment of silverware, clothing and bric-a-brac taken from the house and carried away in an automobile.

Captain Aylward has indicated that he will take immediate steps to protect the Malden home of the State's chief executive.

No attempt has ever been made to enter the Governor's Beacon street mansion, where the family lives in the Winter when in Boston. This beautiful home is carefully guarded against invasion by strangers.

HUB PILGRIMS ARE DUE HOME THURSDAY

Record Enrollment of 85,000 in Parochial Schools, Opening on 15th

Fifty Bostonians, members of the second Boston Holy Year pilgrimage to Rome, which was conducted under the leadership of the Rt. Rev. Joseph G. Anderson, D. D., V. G., auxiliary bishop of Boston, are on the Cunard liner Tuscania, homeward bound, and are due to arrive in New York Thursday morning.

Following the conclusion of the pilgrimage to the Eternal City, the members of the party boarded special cars on a train for Napleh, where sightseeing trips were taken. Then the party boarded the Tuscania and proceeded to Gibraltar, where the pilgrims landed and visited for a few hours.

The rest of the homeward journey is being made without calling at other ports. It is understood that Bishop Anderson is not with the returning party, as it was his original intention to take advantage of the call at Gibraltar to visit Spain for a short period.

Parochial schools of the archdiocese of Boston will open in Greater Boston on September 15, with a total enrollment of more than 85,000 pupils, the largest in the history of the archdiocese. Schools outside of Greater Boston will open simultaneously with public schools in the various cities and towns.

One of the new schools to be opened is that attached to the parish of St. Mary Star of the Sea, Beverly. This school will start with about 100 pupils. The school attached to the Cathedral of the Holy Cross will have approximately 500, while the largest attendance will be that at the school of the Mission Church Parish, Roxbury, with 3,000 pupils.

Boston College will have the largest entering class in its history when it reopens September 16. Every year the number of applicants for admission grows larger than can be accommodated. This year, better facilities and increased room will allow greater registration. Boston College High School, Jamaica street, South End, also expects the largest registration in its history when it opens its doors on September 15.

Brookline Court, No. 208, will have its next meeting tomorrow night, in St. Lawrence Hall. At this meeting the Good of the Order committee will make arrangements for the celebration of the 20th anniversary of the institution of the court.

Division 7, A. O. H., will have its annual outing, on Labor Day, at Brookline Plaid. One of the features of the sporting program will be a baseball game between teams representing St. Thomas' Holy Name society of Jamaica Plain and St. Mary's Catholic Club of Cambridge.

Members of the St. Anne's Association will have a conference at the Convent of the Canacle next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Other announcements from the convent include a meeting of St. Ann's Guild, on Thursday, Sept. 10. On Saturday, Sept. 12, there will be a meeting of the Guild for Stenographers, Holy Hour, Benediction and conference.

'TUB' DEATHS TRIAL OPENS TOMORROW

Captain McVay and Engineer Snyder Go Before Federal Inspectors

Providence, Sept. 1.—Plans were completed today for the opening tomorrow of the trial of John McVay and John A. Grant, master and chief engineer, respectively, of the ill-fated excursion steamer Mackinac, the "Patched Up Tub of Pawtucket.

The trial will take place before federal steamboat inspection officers of this city, and Judge William H. Snyder, legal representative of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover.

The Mackinac officers will be charged with negligence, in failing to have taken proper precautions to prevent the boiler explosion, which took fifty-three lives.

NO JAIL PENALTY.

The only penalty which the Federal tribunal can impose is a revocation of licenses, so that criminal prosecution for manslaughter, if any, would be instituted by the State later.

After the forthcoming trial is ended Assistant Engineer George Mullen, still in a Newport hospital recovering from burns, will appear before the Federal officials on a similar charge.

The trial tomorrow is scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock and it is expected that Captain McVay will be represented by Captain Pruett of New York, one of the counsel for the Masters, Mates and Pilots Association. Chief Engineer Grant, it is reported, will be represented by counsel for the engineers' and firemen's organization.

2 DAYS FOR TESTIMONY.

No notification has been given the Federal officers as to the number of witnesses to be called by the defence. Richard L. Bailey, head of the Federal Steamboat Inspection office stated, however, that taking of testimony will last two days at least.

The defendants, if found guilty, have the right of appeal to Secretary Hoover. It is understood the board will make public its decision as soon as a transcript of the evidence is complete. Judge Snyder is due here from Washington tonight.

SEES A 'TRIPLE BOARD' AS AID TO REVERE

Veteran City Clerk Doubts if Voters Would Favor Being "Spoke in Hub"

Revere is not helpless financially and does not need outside aid in solving its problems, City Clerk Albert J. Brown told the Boston Evening American today.

The statement of Mr. Brown, for twenty-five years town and city clerk of Revere, was made in answer to the movement launched by Philip Augelis for annexation of Revere to Boston.

City Clerk Brown admits that the increase of $11.80 in Revere's tax rate, making it the highest in the State, requires a lot of explaining, but nevertheless maintains that outside aid is unnecessary.

"We don't need annexation to Boston to straighten us out," said the city clerk, "and we don't need a commission form of government. If the Governor were to appoint a triple-headed commission to take charge of things here it might help for a time. But I don't believe the people would favor it.

NO NOVELTY IN DEBT.

"Before it could come to pass the people would have to vote on it. They would also have to vote on the annexation proposition and I question whether that idea would prevail. In other years mayors of Boston have refused to consider the proposition. Just what Mayor Curley or any successor who might be chosen would do, is entirely problematical.

"Revere has had debts ever since it became a city. Each succeeding administration has been confronted with them. We have managed to get along after a fashion and I can't see just why we shall not continue to exist.

"I believe there should have been an increase in the tax rate. As to how great an increase it should have been, that's entirely another matter.

"Much has been said about unpaid bills. I believe every bill the city contracted should be paid.

SAYS SCHOOLS COST.

"I do not believe that one should be paid and another not. The city contracted those debts and the city is in honor bound to pay them and not seek ways and means of evading payment. No Mayor or City Council has ever incurred debt that wasn't justified.

"A goodly portion of Revere's financial burden is taken up in the administration of our schools. This year the budget for schools totalled almost $700,000. That's equal to almost $20 on each $1,000 taxed. We are paying $52,000 of unpaid bills and that's equal to almost another $2. And we are making some improvements.

"The past isn't entirely responsible for the condition existing. Money has been spent this year and must be spent before the end of the present fiscal year. And if it is to be borrowed it will cost money. All these costs tend to add to the tax rate. I can't see any immediate relief and not much prospect of any material reduction a year hence."

125 ARE FELLED IN NEW YORK PIER FIRE

New York, Sept. 1.—One hundred and twenty-five firemen are on the sick list today following one of New York's worst river front fires which swept Pier No. 98 at Fifty-fifth street on the Hudson, imperilled two passenger liners and sent gusts of smoke across the heart of the city blinding the eyes of thousands.

Scores of the firefighters are suffering temporary blindness, others are in bed from smoke poisoning while several are under treatment for submersion after being rescued from the river where they were tossed by wriggling hose.

"Smoky Joe" Martin, veteran fire chief, was treated three times for smoke poisoning. He said it was the worst water front fire in his forty years' experience.

DAM WHICH STARTED BIG ROW

Mrs. Martha A. Woolford of Wrentham (inset), threatens to bring suit against the Franklin County Country Club because her cows will not drink the water conveyed in pipes laid on the ground by the Club, after the damming of the brook which flowed through the club's grounds into the farm of Mrs. Woolford. The dam which was the cause of the original trouble and the water hazard created by shutting off the waters of the brook are shown above.

BOYDEN MAY BE AMBASSADOR TO JAPAN

Roland W. Boyden, president of Boston Chamber of Commerce, is being considered for the post of American ambassador to Japan, according to advices from Washington today. The post was vacated recently by the death of Edgar A. Bancroft.

Mr. Boyden is a lawyer and an expert on international commerce and finance. He lives in Beverly.

As American observer with the Reparations Commission when that body was the most important international organization in the world, he earned the title of "Colonel House of the Harding Administration."

Certain United States Senators made him an issue on the floor of the Senate at that time, alleging he was involving America too deeply with foreign countries.

Roland W. Boyden, president of Boston Chamber of Commerce, who is being considered for appointment as Ambassador to Japan.

Mr. Boyden was born in Beverly. He is president of the Beverly Savings Bank and a director of the Beverly National Bank. Preparing for Harvard at Exeter, he got an A.B. in 1885 and became a bachelor of laws three years later. At Harvard, he starred on the eleven, particularly with the '87 team.

At the outbreak of the World War he became a Four Minute man. Later he went to Washington to assist Herbert Hoover. Mr. Boyden was sent to Paris as an unofficial observer by President Wilson after the war. He retained that post under President Harding until 1924.

Vatican Bars Low Neck Gowns and Bared Arms

Rome, Sept. 1.—The Vatican chamberlain has opened a new war on immodest dressing by women in papal audiences. Hundreds of feminine pilgrims from all parts of Europe were turned down at St. Peter's, attempting to appear before his holiness in low-neck dresses and bared arms.

No order was issued for the lengthening of skirts, which are generally almost knee high, but hereafter it will be imperative to wear black stockings.

A monsignor attached to the Pope's household today declared that American women and girls always knew what to wear, when to wear it and how to wear it.

WOMAN DAIRY FARMER MAY SUE CLUB

Wrentham, Sept. 1.—Damming of a stream to make a hazard for its golf course has made trouble aplenty for the Franklin Country Club and Mrs. Martha A. Woolford, dairy owner.

Another suit against the club is threatened by Mrs. Woolford, who claims her cows refuse to drink water flowing through pipes laid on top of the ground.

She claims to have been deprived of the use of the brook by the club's dam, erected in 1922.

OVERSEER, SHOT BY HAND, DIES OF WOUND

Old Employe of 53 Years' Service Took His Own Life, Also

Augusta, Me., Sept. 1.—Oscar Johnson, overseer of the Edwards Cotton Mill of this city, who was shot yesterday by Morris Devine, a discharged employe, died today at a local hospital.

Johnson, who came here from Newburyport, Mass., to become overseer of the Edwards mill, is said to have chided Devine on his work.

Devine, with fifty-three years' employment in the mill behind him, resented the criticism of the new "boss," left his bench in a fit of anger, went to his home and obtained a revolver.

Returning to the mill he entered into an argument with Johnson and at its height whipped out the gun, shot Johnson twice and then killed himself.

Mrs. Devine, wife of the crazed mill-hand and herself an employe of the mill for fifty-three years, was an eye-witness to the double tragedy.

Hub Savings Going Up

Washington, Sept. 1.—Savings bank deposits in 64 banks in Boston totalled $1,324,310,000 on August 1, according to a Federal reserve board announcement. This was a gain of two million dollars over the July 1 figures and a gain of 68 million over the total of August 1, 1924.

COOLIDGE HOPES HANEY WILL RECONSIDER

Believes Commissioner Will Realize Impropriety of Staying on Shipping Board

Washington, Sept. 1 (A.P.).—Bert E. Haney of Oregon, commissioner of the Shipper Board, reiterated today his refusal to resign under the circumstances requested by President Coolidge.

Swampscott, Sept. 1 (A.P.)—President Coolidge is hopeful Bert E. Haney of Oregon will reconsider his refusal to resign as a commissioner of the Shipping Board.

While extended comment on Mr. Haney's determination to stay in service despite the President's request for his resignation was withheld today at White Court, it was stated Mr. Coolidge believed the commissioner on thinking the matter over will realize the impropriety of remaining on the board.

It is the view of the President that Mr. Haney has shown he does not intend to carry out the policy laid down by the Merchant Marine act, and until he is of such a determination he should not attempt to hold his place as a board member.

Although nothing official could be learned as to what President Coolidge will do in the event Mr. Haney persists in his refusal to resign, it was declared the President is determined to put an end to dissension between Shipping Board commissioners.

Mr. Coolidge thinks it has been shown some members of the board are not in harmony with his merchant marine policy and his efforts to promote efficiency and economy in government. On the whole, he realizes, however, the board has shown a tendency to co-operate with him and he believes the situation will improve materially from now on.

It was stated that the President has in mind no new plan of handling the government merchant marine and would not resort to a change in policy affecting the Shipping Board unless forced to do so by the board itself.

BOILER EXPERT CALLED AS WITNESS

Morton to Testify at Mackinac Hearing; Postpones Today's Instalment

Written expressly for the Boston Evening American.

By HARRY E. MORTON

For twelve years steam boiler inspector for the State of Massachusetts, author of numerous articles on steam boiler defects and their causes, and chief expert for the plaintiff in the molasses tank collapse suit.

I have been called in to testify at today's hearing into the charges which have been registered against Captain George McVay and Chief Engineer John Grant of the steamer Mackinac.

Obviously it would be improper for me to discuss that case at any length today. However, I shall in all probability be in position to make a more thorough diagnosis of the case after listening to the evidence disclosed.

As might be gathered from my previous articles I am not in accord with the Federal investigators in their conclusions. If the opportunity presents itself at the hearing I shall be recorded officially on the subject.

Possibly some good may come of it and then again possibly not. At best today's hearing is merely to determine whether or not the captain and chief engineer shall lose their papers as a result of the explosion.

There can hardly be anything done regarding this blast until the State of Rhode Island takes its action before the grand jury later this month. At that time it may be that the truth of the entire matter is revealed for the investigating body then will be without interest in the case. At present those making the inquiry are co-workers with some whose activities might be subject to questioning.

If I am called on to testify today I shall describe just how that blast could have been avoided. It had been my intention to discuss that matter in the Boston Evening American today. It would appear better for me to await the witness chair ere I do so. There are other matters intimately related to boiler explosions which will be considered at a subsequent time in the Boston Evening American.

BEAUTY SHOPS JOIN PHONE PROTEST

The hairdressers of Boston are among the bitterest opponents of the new telephone rates. They have signed petitions and are planning a protest meeting on Boston Common. Miss Ethel O'Hara of Roxbury is here shown portraying utter disdain felt by the trade for the new rate schedule.

Big Sea Serpent May Be One of Missing Links

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 1 (A.P.). British Columbia is in the throes of a discussion whether creatures which lived in prehistoric times still exist in the southern interior of the province.

E. Leckie-Ewing, an angler of the Okanagan Lake Region, has reported to John P. Babcock, deputy commissioner of fisheries, that long-necked, rough-skinned creatures, which he believes waddled across the surface of the earth long before man was heard of, are living in the depths of the lake.

He says he is preparing to capture one.

WARSHIP TOWS SINKING LINER INTO PORT

Winning a gallant battle against the sea, the Shipping Board freight steamship Kearney dragged up the harbor and to a pier today with bad leaks suffered when she struck on a rock off Seal Island, N. S.

Five feet of water were in one hold and her coal bunkers when she arrived, but the pumps that had clanked steadily and desperately since Sunday still kept the water inrush down and the vessel from sinking.

From Boston Lightship, the steamship, in a sinking condition, was towed into Boston Harbor by the U. S. Destroyer Fanning with the Revenue Cutter Gresham standing by prepared to take off the crew if necessary.

These two rescue vessels had been called in wireless messages sent out by the Kearney and received and relayed by the Tropical Radio Company to the Boston Navy Yard.

CATTLE PUT ASHORE.

Captain G. L. Breeten of the Kearney, a craft operated by the Consolidated Navigation Company, refused to talk of his vessel's predicament when he tied up at pier 59, Mystic docks, in Charlestown, but arranged for an immediate survey of damage before proceeding to Glasgow, Scotland.

The vicinity of the pier took on the aspects of a stockyard district a short time after the crippled vessel tied up, for it was necessary to unload all the 579 head of cattle constituting part of the cargo, and most of her 4,400 tons of general cargo also.

The cattle were shipped to the Brighton stockyards to await reconditioning of the steamship.

First distress messages from the Kearney early today said that Captain Breeden hoped to make Boston before his vessel went down.

MORE AID ASKED.

Later messages however from the Kearney indicated that in spite of efforts to keep the liner afloat with the pumps she was listing sharply. Her stern was reported sinking gradually.

The cutter Gresham raced to the Kearney's aids when the first S. O. S. calls were picked up at the navy yard. When the cutter reached the Kearney, her captain suggested that the cutter prepare to take off her crew.

It was deemed best to ask for additional help, whereupon the Fanning was ordered to speed to Salem to pick up the Kearney's towline.

The Kearney registers 6,617 gross. She was built in Kearney, New Jersey, in 1919.

MALDEN TAX RATE CUT OF $2 IS EXPECTED

An announcement will be made today of a lower tax rate by the Malden Board of Assessors. Mayor John D. Devir when elected promised to reduce the present rate of $35 charged up to property owners. By cutting down every appropriation asked for, and by refusing most of the increases of salaries sought by men in the various departments, Mayor Devir said that he expects the new tax rate will be in the vicinity of $33, thus causing a lowering of about $2 under last year's rate.

B. & M. BRAKEMAN CRUSHED IN FALL BETWEEN CARS

George Hall of Chester avenue, Somerville, a brakeman on the Boston & Maine Railroad, is in a serious condition at Massachusetts General Hospital as a result of being crushed between freight cars in the North Station yards today. It is said he lost his balance and was caught between the cars. He was picked up by other members of the freight crew and hurried to the hospital.

PHONE BILLS ROUSE IRE OF SUBSCRIBERS

Public Feels Effects of Rate Increase as First Monthly Statements Arrive

The big-hearted New England Telephone & Telegraph Company began passing the hat today among its subscribers.

It marked the first monthly clean-up under the new $8,640,000 rate grab made possible by its Santa Claus friend, the Public Utilities Commission.

Bills were sent broadcast paving the way for the first dip into the people's pocket under a tax as unpopular as that levied on tea in Revolutionary days.

As the bills for the new rate schedule began to arrive a real howl swept the Commonwealth, compared with which the grumble of the past few weeks was but a mouse squeak.

406 AT NAHANT.

Public indignation is still at the boiling point. Mrs. Winifred M. Buckley, of Dorchester, president of the Housekeepers' Club of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Elizabeth Kenney of Arlington, secretary of the club, collected 406 signatures on protest petitions at Nahant on Sunday.

A petition bearing forty signatures headed by William McCaskill of No. 24 Morrell street, North Weymouth, was neatly arranged.

Dr. Frederick W. Derby, of No. 166 Huntington avenue, sent the following letter to Mrs. Buckley of the Housekeepers' Club:

"Note your activities in the Boston Evening American relative to the phone increase. I am very much pleased with the activities of your club and am willing to lend my aid. Will start several petitions immediately. Please advise me.

"It is very evident that Governor Fuller does not intend to do anything, leaving it to our good Mayor and the Boston Evening American, and yourself.

"I think to action of the commission in granting the increase of phone rates cowardly.

Here is a letter which shows that the mileage rate in West Gloucester has jumped from $1.20 to $2 under the new schedule:

INCREASE IN MILEAGE.

"On a 4-party line, I personally have paid $1.75 per month plus a mileage charge of $1.02, making a total of $2.77. According to the pamphlets sent out by the company they discontinue the 4-party line, but will put you on a 4, 3 or 2-party line for $2 plus $2 mileage, making a total of $4 a month.

"The company not only jumps the rate 75 cents per month but also jumps the mileage 98 cents per month, claiming we live beyond the city zone limit.

SEARCH ENGLAND FOR RELATIVE OF FUAD

Hastings, Eng., Sept. 1 (A.P.)—The search for Prince Ahmed Sieffeddin, brother-in-law of King Fuad of Egypt, and two attendants, who disappeared with him yesterday from a sanitarium for mental cases here, has extended throughout England.

The first theory was the Prince had been kidnaped, and this was still held in most quarters today.

BALBRIGGAN TO BE WORN BY $100 GIRL

American's Miss to Sport New Fall Hat—Balbriggan Dress Combination

Again a Boston Evening American Girl will be with the merry throng at Revere Beach. This maid, the fifth member of the Boston Evening American's Girl family, will be known as "The Girl With the New Fall Hat, Wearing a Balbriggan Dress," and will be seen along the promenade at Revere Beach next Saturday, Sept. 5, between the hours of 4 and 8 P. M. To the person who finds her $100 will be awarded.

Don't miss this event. It promises to eclipse all previous hunts for Boston Evening American girls.

SAME RULES

The rules governing this "Chase" are exactly the same as those under which the other Boston Evening American Girls were captured.

First of all you must be "armed" with a copy of the Boston Evening American, dated Sept. 5.

Secondly, the "Girl With the New Fall Hat, Wearing a Balbriggan Dress" must be found along the promenade while walking—no place else nor under any other conditions.

And, last of all, you must address her in the following manner when you approach her: "You are the Boston Evening American's Girl With the New Fall Hat, Wearing a Balbriggan Dress."

SHORT BUT LIVELY

To the thousands of folks who have already given chase to one of these elusive maidens on previous Saturdays, the trapping of this young lady ought to be simple.

Not only can she be identified by the new Fall hat but she will also have on a new balbriggan dress. Equipped with this information and a fairly good likeness impressed upon your mind from studies of her appearing daily in the Boston Evening American, the search for her should be short but lively.

There is one catch in the program, however, and that is that she will not let you know how her dress is to be made nor what color it is going to be, therefore you will have to do a little detective work.

And to you men, this suggestion might come in handy: Take a walk about town, find out what balbriggan dress material is and then look up some of the smartest others being used this fall. Or, you might ask your wives, sweethearts or sisters about these things—they'll know.

OTHER PRIZES.

Why not make it a real Saturday night this week, girls? All of you who have a new Fall hat and a balbriggan dress wear them along the promenade next Saturday, afternoon between the hours designated for the contest. Not only will it add to the success of the event for all you happy visitors to the beach, but there is a possibility that you might be fortunate in winning a second prize even though you fail in getting the first.

To the girl wearing the prettiest balbriggan dress and most charming new Fall hat, found along the promenade by the "Girl With the New Fall Hat, Wearing a Balbriggan Dress," the Boston Evening American will award a second prize of $10.

In addition, twenty-five sets of tickets—each set good for twenty-seven attractions at the beach, will be given to the first twenty-five girls so attired who come to the Boston Evening American's Bathing Beauty platform in front of the Nautical ballroom, at 8:30 P. M.

2 REVERE AUTOISTS HELD IN PARKWAY GIRL ATTACK

Responding to a girl's screams, Revere police today arrested two young man in a small sedan in which was a young woman on the International Highway near Broadway, Revere. The men, who the girl charged had attempted to attack her, were booked as Joseph Del Grosso, twenty-one years old of No. 816 Broadway, Revere, and Vito L. Delaria, twenty, of No. 238 Madison avenue, Chelsea. Out of deference to the girl the Boston Evening American withholds her name.

"HIGHWAY ROBBERY"

That is what the housewives of Greater Boston and the State call the new schedule of increased rates granted the telephone company. Fight the injustice and rebuke the Public Utilities Commission by signing this petition and thus register your personal protest.

TELEPHONE PETITION

TO GOVERNOR FULLER:

We, the undersigned, subscribers of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, voice our protest against the increase of rates for telephone service as granted by the Public Utilities Commission of Massachusetts, and petition that the former schedule of rates be restored immediately.

NAME ADDRESS

NOTE—Paste this petition at top of long sheet of paper and obtain as many signatures as possible. Kindly see that names and addresses are written clearly and on one side of paper only. Send petitions to Boston Evening American, Winthrop Square, Boston, and they will be forwarded to Housekeepers' Club of Massachusetts.

BALBRIGGAN GIRL TO PARADE SATURDAY

"The Girl With the New Fall Hat, Wearing a Balbriggan Dress," fifth of the Boston Evening American's elusive maidens, will brave capture at Revere Beach next Saturday from 4 to 8 p. m. To aid prospective searchers a study of the girl is presented above. Other photos will be shown this week, so watch the American and go to Revere Saturday well equipped to join the hunt.

TODAY

Unless it is very big you will hardly see a little piece of ground called "Long Island." Yet Long Island, which includes Brooklyn and Queens, has more telephones than there are in the whole of South America, all those great republics. And Long Island has more telephones than there are in the whole of France.

MR. McCULLOUGH, who recently connected up telephone number 508,000 in the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce is to be congratulated on efficiency. If the business men of America would only do with flying machines what they have done with telephones, this nation would be much obliged to them, and safer than it is now.

VIENNA URGES the union of Austria and Germany. A union of all Germanic peoples into one great federal republic is possible, the German States to unite on the basis of our United States here.

BERNARD SHAW, who knows more about America than some of our home-made statesmen, reminds the latter that this country has its own League of Nations, made up of forty-eight States. Europe, instead of trying to drag us in, should form its own League of States, refraining from war in between those States as States in this country refrain from war. Suppose Pennsylvania were fighting Texas and wanted Europe to come here and help us to stop fighting, would not Europe laugh, and ask, "Well, why don't you stop?"

THAT SAME Bernard Shaw, in a mood of unusual but accurate humility, says that the world a thousand years hence will know nothing about him except that the great French sculptor, Rodin, once made a bust of Shaw. In a thousand years, says Shaw, biographical dictionaries will contain this:

"Shaw, Bernard: Subject of a bust by Rodin; otherwise unknown."

EVEN THAT'S an overstatement, for in a thousand years Rodin won't be remembered any more than Shaw.

Rodin is about 1,000 years from now will be as unimportant as Kipling in literature or Shaw in philosophy.

R. C. A. OFFERS NEW TYPE SETS

Latest Developments in Radio Receiving Field Put on Market Today

The release today, by the Radio Corporation of America, of its new line of radio sets and accessories is highly significant to every radio user.

Following the conviction that broadcast transmission will be continually improved, the Radio Corporation of America has designed the Radiolas to take into account the transmitting conditions of many years hence. Both the present and the new types of sets therefore have wide "acoustical" bands, wide enough to take care of any developments of the future.

Thus, the purchaser of one of these machines obtains continuity of performance and a broadcast receiver of permanent value not likely to be rendered obsolete by any ever-night development, either in radio transmission or reception.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS.

The new RCA developments may be briefly stated:

1.—Radiolas which operate from the lighting mains, requiring no batteries whatsoever.

2.—Dry battery operated Radiolas which give volume in excess of storage battery operated sets.

3.—A "B" battery eliminator, known as the RCA "Duo-Rectron," which provides plate voltages for each type of radio receiver in existence today.

4.—The introduction of three new Radiola loud speakers giving quality and volume far beyond that of existing types.

(a) Model 100 loud speaker is constructed on a new cone principle and is primarily intended for direct connection to Radiolas and other receiving sets operated from either dry batteries or storage batteries.

(b) Model 102 loud speaker operates from an A. C. driven rectifier-power amplifier unit, known as the Unirectron, giving exceedingly fine clarity of reproduction.

(c) Model 104 loud speaker is the most powerful of the new cone series, designed to give the full volume of an orchestra or band in the home, without distortion.

5.—The introduction of three new Radiotrons (power amplifiers) for use in the last audio stage of broadcast receivers.

INTERCHANGEABLE TYPE.

The new RCA developments, in the form of highly improved loud speakers, A.C. power amplifiers, "B" battery eliminators, and these devices are of such design that they can be applied to existing types of Radiolas and other broadcast receivers, thus enabling owners of present-day receivers to enjoy the benefits of the additional discoveries made by RCA research and engineering forces.

These new developments also have been incorporated in certain of the new Radiola models, for instance in the new model 20 Radiola, referred to as the "DeLuxe" of the line. The model 20 has 13 tubes. It operates completely from the light socket, and even depends upon this source for its "C" battery! The set itself is undoubtedly the crowning achievement of the day. This works on the well known superheterodyne principle, and has eight tubes. (The other five tubes constitute the rectifying device.) The machine is constructed on the console style, and a unique method of tuning is employed. The reception is accomplished through the use of the new cone loud speaker, Radiola 100.

The eight tube model of superheterodyne also is incorporated in the Radiola 28, which is constructed on the desk style. This machine runs on either A.C. or D.C. directly from the light socket, provided of course that the necessary rectifying device is employed.

SUPERS STILL OFFERED.

The RCA superheterodyne sets of last year, using six tubes, are still being offered, although at greatly reduced prices. The six tube set has made a tremendous appeal to the public on account of its portability and small battery consumption.

The new Radiola 20 is a superlative, popularly priced five tube receiver, operating on the self-balanced principle. Perhaps the most interesting part of this model is the simple unicontrol method of tuning. Once the stations are located, the two dials may be marked with a pencil, with the station's call letters.

Radiolas III and III A, offered last year at a low price, are still among the RCA line. These models are unchanged, and are offered at a still lower price.

It is significant that the new loud speaker offerings are of the cone type.

The announcement of an A-B-C eliminator, which makes it possible for any radio set to be operated directly from the light socket, is interesting to all radio users.

Heretofore the great draw-back to such devices was that they would frequently be rendered inoperative by line voltage fluctuation. This characteristic has been taken care of by an ingenious "ballast lamp" arrangement.

RADIO INVENTOR TO SHOW NEW MODELS

Joseph W. Jones Makes Short Visit to Hub to Introduce Newest Sets

Boston has as a visitor today, one of the most widely known of radio inventors, Joseph W. Jones. Mr. Jones is accompanied by Colonel S. Herbert Mapes, who is the vice-president and sales manager of the Jones organization. They are stopping at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, where they will be demonstrating today to distributors and jobbers the three models of the new Jones Radio Receiver.

This set is of the tuned radio frequency type, employing two stages of audio amplification in two of the models, and three stages of audio amplification in the third model. An ingenious switching device is used so that the volume may readily be controlled through shifting from two to three stages of audio amplification.

Mr. Jones is an inventor of no small repute. Among his most commonly known inventions are the taximeter, the speedometer and the disc phonograph record. His activities in the radio field have been prominent with the introduction sometime ago of the Joseph W. Jones line of radio parts and units.

The Jones activity for the coming radio season is built on a policy of fair play to the radio consumer. Great stress has been layed upon this in the bonded guarantee clause, which has been put into effect. Both dealer and customers are protected in this manner from any cause of dissatisfaction.

SECRETLY PREPARE TO RECTIFY IRISH BORDER

London, Sept. 1 (I.N.S.)—Secret steps have already been taken for quick and unhesitated rectification of the Irish border, in accordance with the decision of the Irish Boundary Commission, according to the Morning Post, organ of the "die-hard" Tories.

The Morning Post states that both Free State and Imperial customs officials have been notified to prepare to move their border stations at a moment's notice, and it is also suggested they keep automobiles ready to move their office equipment during the night.

PLAN ORGANIZATION OF NECKWEAR WORKERS

An intensive organizing campaign among the neckwear workers of Boston and vicinity, that the wage and working conditions may be brought up to the standard enjoyed by those engaged in this industry in other centers, is to be waged here under the direction of the American Federation of Labor.

Plans are now under way for the holding of the first of a series of meetings during the coming week. The campaign will be directed by Frank H. McCarthy, general organizer of the A. F. of L. and David Silverman of New York, national organizer of the United Neckwear Workers.

BEDTIME STORIES

MRS. ORIOLE'S TROUBLES

By Foxy Grandpa

"FOXY GRANDPA," shouted Bobby, one day as he came running into the house. "I do believe somebody's canary has gotten away and is perching out in our oak tree."

I looked up into the tree and just then a streak of yellow flittered over my head.

"Oriole," I exclaimed. "No wonder you thought he was a canary when you saw him from a distance, Bobby."

I went into the house and that afternoon Bobby came running in and said:

"Foxy Grandpa! The oriole's back. But he has another kind of bird with him. It can't be his wife, because she hasn't the yellow breast like he has."

I went out to see the oriole's companion and then I spoke to Bobby.

"That is Mrs. Oriole, Bobby."

"But she doesn't look like him."

"I know it, Bobby. But you see, Mrs. Oriole's taste in dress isn't as flashy as that of her husband. But they're married all right and I'm very happy to think they have chosen our oak tree to set up housekeeping in."

It was not long after that that Bobby came running in and said:

"Foxy Grandpa, I was climbing up in the oak tree when the orioles were out and I peeked into their nest. There are three eggs in it—purplish white eggs with red and gray spots on them."

Weeks passed, and one morning we heard the greatest chirping and cooing out in the orioles household! The babies were hatched out!

Finally the day came when the babies climbed up on the top of the nest. How proud the little father and mother were! And then one day off out of the nest flew two of the fat little babies and before their mother knew it were perched close together on the nest, too.

She never left them, but kept fluttering near them and bringing them dainty morsels, which they grabbed out of her mouth and then cried for more.

Evening came. Mrs. Oriole was getting very nervous. She wanted to get her babies back home and tucked safely in bed for the night. But the two little ones were afraid to fly. They wouldn't budge, no matter how she scolded and coaxed them. How she did plead and coo to them—and then scold.

Finally she could stand it no longer. What do you think she did?

She got right under them and shoved them off the branch on which they were huddled close together. Before the babies knew it they were flying right home after their mother and soon she had them snug in the nest and her own head under her wing—worn out, just like all mothers are when the day's work is done and the children tucked in.

CHINESE BANDITS FREE BISHOP AND FAMILY

Shanghai, Sept. 1 (A.P.).—Bishop H. W. K. Mowll, his wife and six other members of the Church Missionary Society captured by bandits near Chengtu, Szechwan Province, on August 6, have been released. This news was contained in a telegram received today by the local office of the Church Missionary Society.

MEIGHAN DRINKLESS ON TRIP TO IRELAND

New York, Sept. 1.—Most tourists take a trip across the ocean to sample the good old stuff—but not Thomas Meighan, the screen star. It was a trip for work. Thomas returned on board the Leviathan after a brief sojourn in Ireland, and declared that during his trip abroad nary a drink did he have. The screen star offered no alibis for dodging the soothing "tonic," nor was he asked.

JUDGE LOGAN IS IN FIGHT FOR MAYORALTY

General Cole Is Slated to Be His Campaign Manager, Friends Say

Major General Edward L. Logan's "in hat" is in the mayoralty ring.

True, the general is withholding definite announcement of his candidacy, but his close friends say he has decided to enter the contest.

And none other than Brig-Gen. Charles H. Cole is slated to fill the important position of campaign manager for his old friend and brother officer.

Gen. Cole, who has been prominently mentioned as a candidate to succeed Mayor Curley, has passed up the opportunity to make the fight for his doughty Yankee Division brother, General Logan.

The latter finally has broken the stolid silence which he maintained when questioned before as to whether he would stand for election as chief executive of Boston:

"Many persons have asked me to run. I have no statement to make just now. I will have something later."

This was all that General and Judge Logan said when questioned concerning rumors of his candidacy.

Logan adherents intimate that he had not moved before because he had no assurance concerning the position of the Good Government Association toward his candidacy. If he now becomes a real contender, the political wiseacres have it that he must believe that he will not be without support within the association.

TWO SEEK TO FILL ASHLEY'S SEAT

Joseph F. Sulia, Democrat, of Montague, and Andrew C. Warner, Republican, of Sunderland, today filed papers in the office of the Secretary of State for the vacancy in the office of representative from the Third Franklin District, caused by the death of Representative Charles A. Ashley of Deerfield.

BIGGEST HOTEL TO BAN SMOKES AND RUM

Guests Must Take Pledge in Hostelry Planned as Missionary Memorial

New York, Sept. 1 (A.P.).—Smoking, drinking and possibly Sunday newspapers will be taboo nearly throughout the world's loftiest skyscraper, a $14,000,000, 5,000-room hotel building, which Oscar A. Kenkle, a realty operator, plans to erect as a monument to missionaries out of gratitude for the recovery of his son from lockjaw.

The building will be sixty-five stories, towering 800 feet above the street, eight feet taller than the Woolworth Building. Ten per cent. of the profits will go for missionary work. Each hotel guest must sign a statement pledging not to use tobacco or intoxicants.

The maximum charge for room, bath and two meals a day will be $21 a week.

The skyscraper will occupy an entire block at 122d street and Broadway.

PLEASING VARIETY OF GOOD ACTS AT KEITH'S

All that the vaudeville fan can ask for in variety and excellence of entertainment is on the bill at Keith's this week. The acts are well chosen and the performers distinctively pleasing.

Capturing the fancy of the audience from the start is Miss Frankie Heath in song stories, accompanied by a pianist. Joe Laurie, Jr., "the pint size author comedian," drew a continuous round of laughs and well deserves his featuring on the bill with the songstress.

David Ferguson, a character comedian, furnished more laughs and some exceptionally good aerial and tumbling acts were provided by Bobbie McGood and Company and Paul Pashon and his aggregation. The Gelsdorf sisters put on a peppery dance offering and rivalling their entertainment was a sketch entitled "Two Girls and a Fellow," given by Allen, Taylor and Huston.

The other acts on the bill rounded out the evening in pleasing style and sent home a well-satisfied audience.

Natalie Bayard Merrill Big Favorite at Newport

Stockbridge Girl Is Debutante Par Excellence in Ultra Conservative Set

Betty Alden

MISS NATALIE BAYARD MERRILL, daughter of the Rev. George Grenville Merrill and Mrs. Merrill of Stockbridge, lovely Berkshire town, is having the merriest of Summers in Newport as debutante par excellence in the ultra conservative set of which her aunt, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown of Harbour Court, is a member.

IN THE SMART throngs at the Newport Casino for the Horse Show, Miss Merrill came in for much admiration in a costume showing the late season's vogue for yellow in motordrille's wardrobe. She wore a knitted frock, of the golden maize tone, a chapeau of the same sunny color and a jersey designed in Eastern pattern. Miss Merrill was presented recently to society at a brilliant ball during Tennis Week.

ONE OF NEWPORT'S most consistent and delightful entertainers this season is "Beau Brummel" Thomas Powers, a guest at the Muenchinger-King cottage and known throughout Newport's Four Hundred as host par excellence for the small, congenial group, rather than for large mixed gatherings.

MR. POWERS, WITH his fondness for Newporters of the Boston connection, often entertains members of that coterie—witness, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden de Forest, Mrs. George Douglas Gill (she and Mrs. de Forest are sisters), and the Charles L. F. Richardsons (Mrs. Richardson was known to Bostonians as Charlotte Pell). Mr. Powers, genial and gallant always, is the last word in masculine sartorial elegance.

APROPOS OF STOCKBRIDGE, the seventeenth exhibition at the Casino in that far-famed Berkshire village is attracting notables of the brush and chisel, and of Fashiondom as well. Philip L. Ross, Mrs. Ross Winans Whistler, Mrs. Philip L. Hale, Miss Lydia Field Emmet, Daniel Chester French and many another of like renown are showing their works.

THE ANNUAL CASINO exhibition opened with a tea, to which all smart Berkshirettes flock. Mrs. Daniel Chester French and Mrs. Carl A. de Gersdorff poured. Mr. French (it need not be stated that he is the internationally-known sculptor) is one of the committee.

LOCALLY SPEAKING, Boston's art set is keenly anticipating Miss Grace Nichols' return from London, where she attended at Christy's the auction and sale of John Singer Sargent paintings and effects. Rumor has it that Miss Nichols purchased a number of Sargent works, wherewith to enrich her own as well as other Boston collections.

MISS NICHOLS is due on this side quite soon, within a week or so, at her Italian villa on the Esplanade at Chestnut street. Miss Nichols already is the possessor of a choice collection, to which the Sargent works will be a notable addition.

OF BOSTON'S MANY European voyagers, none are more feted abroad than Miss Bertha and Miss Francesca Braggiotti, who are moving triumphantly from Italy to France, from France to England. Their fellow passengers on the steamship going over still tell of the charming society dancers and their striking dance numbers, climaxing a shipboard entertainment in their wonted clever way.

MRS. LOUIS BACON, a charming member of Nahant's Summer colony. She was Mary Sutherland, daughter of Admiral and Mrs. Sutherland, and is as well known in Washington's Inner Set as in Boston's.

BRIGHT BILL FEATURED AT LOEW'S ORPHEUM

The bill at Loew's Orpheum Theatre gave a large audience many opportunities to express its appreciation. Hubert Kinney and his bevy of pretty girls gave an exhibition of speed and grace in dancing. The featured artiste was Gladys Petersen, late of the Ziegfeld Follies.

Nell McKinley, a relic of the days of minstrelsy, still proves that he can hold the attention of an audience. Burns and Wilson supplied a skit entitled "The Untrained Nurses."

The picture part of the bill offered Norma Shearer in "A Slave of Fashion," with Lew Cody, Mary Carr and William Haines featured.

'SUN UP' AND BEBE DANIELS FILM SHOWN AT STATE

Two interesting photoplays were shown at Loew's State yesterday when "Sun-Up," a picturization of the stage play that touched the heart of Broadway, and "Wild, Wild Susan," starring Bebe Daniels, were seen by a large audience. "Sun-Up" is a story of the present-day North Carolina mountain folk, the same locale of that other famous picture, "Tol'able David."

"Wild, Wild Susan" presents Bebe Daniels in the role of a New York society girl who can't live without excitement. Rod La Rocque gives Miss Daniels excellent support.

PLANES FAIL TO FIND MISSING SUBMARINE

Rome, Sept. 1 (I.N.S.).—Aeroplanes and seaplanes which have scoured waters between Cape Passero and Cape Murro di Porco have not found any trace of the missing sr. Marine Sebastiano Veniero, the Admiralty announced today.

Sarch for the missing ship will continue, but it is difficult as there has been no indication as to what befell the vessel or whether she met with trouble while on the surface or when submerged.

EXCURSION STEAMER BURNS; ONE DROWNS

Westfield, N. Y., Sept. 1 (A.P.).—The pleasure steamer Colonial, of Erie, Pa., was burned to the waters edge off this port early today. One was reported drowned, one missing and sixteen rescued. The vessel was on its way to Dunkirk from Erie to make an excursion trip and only the crew was on board.

Continuing Shows

MAJESTIC—"Rose-Marie." Musical comedy with the Canadian prov inces as the background.

TREMONT—"No, No, Nanette." Prolicksome farce with music. The last two weeks.

COLONIAL—Douglas Fairbanks in "Don Q." Spectacular film showing Mr. Fairbanks in a galloping role.

SYMPHONY HALL—"Winds of Chance." A Rex Beach story made into one of the best films of many seasons.

WILBUR—"My Girl." Musical comedy, flanked by the smartest chorus of the year.

PLYMOUTH—Edna Dowling in "The Fall Guy." An appealing comedy of life on the East side.

Coming Events

"The Student Prince," will be the opening attraction at the Shubert, starting next Monday.

William Farnum returns to the speaking stage in a romantic comedy called "The Buccaneer," which will take the stage at the Tremont next Monday.

The new season at the New Park will open next Monday with a play of home life called "Duty."

"The Ten Commandments" will be the principal film feature in the bill at Loew's State next week.

The San Carlo Opera Company will begin a week of grand opera at the Boston Opera House on Monday, September 14th.

The Boston Civic Opera Company, made up principally of local singers, will occupy the Boston Opera House for one week beginning Monday, September 28th.

FAST AND FUNNY FROLIC PRESENTED AT GAYETY

Fast and fanciful fun and frolic is the foundation upon which the "Powder Puff Frolic," this week's attraction at the Gayety Theatre, has been constructed. The choice of George Broadhurst and Charley Abot as the principal comics is fully justified, if the gales of laughter that followed their antics at the opening performance can be taken as a true test.

Tiney Hemley and her sister, Rose, gorgeously gowned leading women, are dancers and singers of tip-top order. Twenty-one musical numbers and ten changes of scenery completes the show.

SEEKS TO OBTAIN MONEY OF NIECE

Bridgeport, Ct., Sept. 1 (A.P.)—Harvey K. Flagler, eighty, of Stonehams, Mass., filed suit in the Superior Court to obtain allowances from the estate of Mrs. Anna Harden Hickey, daughter of his deceased brother, John M. Flagler. Mrs. Hickey, fifty-nine, has been an inmate of Stamford Hall, Stamford, for eighteen years, under treatment for a mental disease. She also is a niece of the late Edmund C. Converse, banker, of Greenwich and New York.

FIND "FADING" OF RADIO EVEN WITH SUPER-POWER

Washington, Sept. 1 (A.P.).—Fading, the bugaboo of radio, which scientists have not as yet been able to explain, cannot be eliminated through use of super-power in broadcasting, in the view of experts of the Bureau of Standards, Analysis by them of the effects of the use of super-power, made from recent tests at Schenectady, N. Y., when station WGY used 50,0 watts in broadcasting, has shown that radio signals continue to va in intensity despite the tremendo increase in power.

A Taste of Honey

A Story that Bares the Soul of a Woman, Twice Cheated Out of a Love She Is Forced to Steal

JERROLD FREYNE, a promising young author who has written a book dealing coldly and calmly with love and marriage, is appointed to a clerkship in the Foreign Legation. ELSPETH VOICEY, a cold-sweet daughter of aristocracy, is his promised bride. While wedding plans are under discussion, Jerrold meets GERDA MASKLYN, wife of his friend. He is stricken by her strange beauty and by her bewitching appeal of person. Immediately he is given a new interpretation of love, vastly different from that he put into his book. The situation is rapidly getting beyond his control, and he finds his cultured philosophy being pushed aside by a feeling blissfully new to him.

CHAPTER IV.

IT is a far step musically from Wagner to the tango, yet Jerrold, hearing the tango someone was playing on a piano as he came up the steps of a house in Hamilton Terrace, St. John's Wood, felt that this music touched him too, deeply and intimately, as had the fret and fever of Die Walkure.

The door was opened by a maid as comfortable in bulk as the house itself. Tommy Masklyn met him in the hall.

"Good," he said. "I hoped you wouldn't forget. I've just been cleaning some of the guv'nor's port. Never leave that sort of a thing to the servants."

All the while the tango had gone on, played on a piano of exquisite tone, now loud and brazen, as to a dance in a South American night-cafe, now tender and intangible.

"We are old-fashioned enough to have our drawing-room upstairs," said Masklyn as he paused at a door opposite the head of the stairs. He threw open the door and let his guest pass into a high room blazing with candlelight.

"Gerda, this is Jerrold Freyne, whose novels you've read."

At Last They Meet

Jerrold had a momentary vision of very white shoulders rising from a dress of flame coloring, and of a face turned to him as she rose to the introduction.

Very dark she was, with hair like a night sky in the South. Curls half-concealed her ears and nestled about the white nape of her neck. The deep eyes, heavy lashed, the lips so strongly marked against the faint rose-flushed pallor of the face, ah, who can describe the beauty that he saw?

But as he bent over her hand he was stunned, not so much by her beauty—but by the recognition of her whom he had seen five days ago in the waiting-room of Dr. Bastian.

Mrs. Arden—Mrs. Masklyn—he couldn't understand.

It was impossible that there could be two women made in so lovely a mould. He raised his eyes to hers in search of a clue. Did they betray recognition? Perhaps. He could not be sure.

"I'm so pleased to meet you at last," she told him. "I've read every single thing you've ever written."

"Not 'The Gay Garden' let me hope," Jerrold protested.

"Yes, and your other early novel, the one about the war and the man who lost his eyes."

"D'you know, I'd give my right hand never to have published those two wretched books," he told her. "They haunt me like ghosts. I tell you, I'm paying now for my insatiable desire to see myself in print."

She laughed. "Don't we all pay for our youthful indiscretions, Mr. Freyne, for headstrong love affairs, for committing ourselves to things which later on are intolerable to our greater experience, so many things which seem so sweet and desirable at eighteen or nineteen?"

"Well, I'm paying now," he said, accepting a cigarette from the box his host held out to him.

As he lit the cigarette and watched the first grey-blue wreaths of its smoke, he was thinking furiously. Who was she, this beautiful woman who saw her doctor under an assumed name, who taunted him with his inability to read her riddle, who talked so well in that lazy,

Sams Appoints Potter Aid for Dry Law Enforcement

Jerrold is a dinner guest at the home of his friend, Tommy Masklyn. A dull evening, but necessary, he has said to himself. At that moment Masklyn took him to the music room and said: "Mr. Freyne, meet my wife, Mrs. Masklyn." Jerrold is struck with a strange feeling as he greets Mrs. Masklyn, none other than the mysterious Mrs. Arden he had seen the day before.

SHELDON TO HEAD FIELD AGENTS

Entire New England District Personnel, With Few Exceptions and Transfers

Reuben B. Sams assumed control of the dry forces in New England at 9 a. m. today.

His first official act as acting district administrator was the appointment of Elmer C. Potter of Worcester, former Massachusetts director of prohibition enforcement, as his chief aid in the issuance of liquor permits and physicians' licenses to prescribe alcoholic drinks as medicine.

Sams then appointed as his chief field agent, former State Director Harry G. Sheldon of Rhode Island, who will have charge of liquor law enforcement in the entire district.

Each of the five States in the district, except Massachusetts, will have a deputy administrator. In each case, except that of Sheldon, the former State directors have been chosen deputy administrators. They are: Seth May of Maine, Jonathan Lewis of New Hampshire, Bert S. Hyland of Vermont and Raymond T. Sowell of Rhode Island.

Not a single head dropped in the basket at prohibition headquarters today as a result of the new administration of affairs. The shifts noted above were the only material changes in the personnel of the force.

More than 100 dry agents of the combined former State and district forces gathered at No. 72 Chauncy street and were received by Acting Administrator Sams. They were told that there would be no changes or reductions in their numbers at present. Such changes as are to be made will be after a careful survey of the personnel of the district.

Efficient men will be retained, Sams said. Inefficient, careless or dishonest agents will be dropped just as quickly as their faults become apparent.

HARVARD BREWERY CASE UP THURSDAY

Lowell, Sept. 1.—Unless another postponement is asked by either the government or defence, which is considered unlikely, the Harvard Brewery case will be tried before United States Commissioner Richard B. Walsh on Thursday.

The brewery officials, with thousands of dollars at stake, have obtained the services of prominent Lowell and Boston attorneys, while Assistant U. S. Attorney Dennis Sandderson will represent the government.

GIRL SLEEPING SICKNESS DEATH VICTIM IN MALDEN

Miss Elizabeth T. McGrath of No. 22 Barrett street, Malden, who was stricken while shopping on Pleasant street a month ago, is dead at her home of sleeping sickness.

Two sisters, Miss Anna I. McGrath, a singer, and Miss Mary A. McGrath, passed away within the past 18 months.

FOOTE REBUKES LAWYER AT HEARING

A hearing on an appeal entered by Irving Cahill against the decision of Fire Marshal George C. Neal, in revoking a permit issued by the Boston street commissioners for the erection of a 100-unit garage at No. 157 Washington street, Dorchester, was given today at the State House by Commissioner of Public Safety Alfred F. Foote.

Former Speaker B. Loring Young represented the petitioner and John R. Murphy appeared as counsel for the remonstrants.

While questioning William E. Wiseman, a retired policeman, witness for the petitioner, who testified the garage would not endanger pedestrians, Murphy referred to him "as one who had pounded the pavements."

Commissioner Foote rebuked Murphy for his characterization.

"I used the expression in a jocose manner," defended Murphy. "In diplomatic language I am now told that I am deliberately abusing a witness. I have never done so in all my career. I don't believe I deserve this."

Murphy asked the case be continued so some other official could sit on the case. He was accused by Foote of being "thin-skinned."

"No, I'm not thin-skinned," Murphy retorted. "I'm too old a bird for that."

BEAUTIES IN RACE FOR HONOR

Seventh of Boston Evening American Contests to Be Staged at Ballroom

Bathing beauties to the front tonight!

Tonight is the night of the seventh preliminary bathing beauty contest at Revere Beach, sponsored by the Boston Evening American. At 8:30 o'clock the most beautiful of the beautiful swimming and bathing maids will appear at the Nautical Ballroom to compete in this contest, which is open to all girls from New England.

A silver cup, and five points toward the final competition, September 12, at which time the winner will be awarded $100 in gold and the title, "Miss New England," will be presented to tonight's winner.

The final contest on September 12, at the same place and same hour of the evening as the preliminaries, is the big event of the series, for all previous winners of the preliminaries as well as many who entered the preliminaries but failed to achieve first place, and a number of entirely new entrants will participate.

Miss Muriel Bowers of No. 126 Essex street, Cliftondale, winner of the fifth preliminary, was an entrant in all the preliminaries until she won the much coveted first prize. So you see, girls, it pays to "try, try again."

Miss Ethel Amundsen of No. 27 Julian street, Dorchester, won the last event, the sixth preliminary.

If for any reason you are unable to enter the preliminary tonight there are others still to come, but do try for tonight's if possible.

The "Digging" contests along the sands at Revere each are still under way. On September 3, tomorrow, and September 4, there will be buried in the sands along the beach between the grandstands at Revere and Beach streets, above high water mark, 50 books of tickets; each book good for 27 attractions at the beach. These tickets are good until 7 P. M. on day they are found.

RUSSIA TURNS TRIAL OF 21 FOR LIFE INTO PICNIC

Moscow, Sept. 1.—A trial of twenty-one government officials charged with highway robbery, arson, murder, forgery and embezzlement, is in session in the village of Bingo, daitnoye in the Odessa. Determined to provide the peasantry with a "good show," the judge had a huge outdoor stage built for the proceedings. Hundreds in holiday attire pour into the "picnic grounds" and spread festival lunch tables under the trees. The gang of alleged corrupt politicians became rich and prosperous. Strongly organized, they defied the protests and threats of the oppressed community.

ONE OF THE BEAUTIES WHO WON PRIZE

Miss Muriel Bowers, Cliftondale beauty, who won the sixth of the Boston Evening American elimination beauty contests. Miss Bowers will compete for the title, "Miss New England," in the principal contest September 12.

CITY FINISHES WRECK OF ROMANCE

An echo of the wrecked romance of nineteen-year-old Sarah Milman of No. 81 West street, Newton, and Charles S. D'Arcy, twenty, of No. 39 St. Botolph street, Boston, was heard today when officials of the Newton license bureau sought the return of their marriage license taken out last February.

The license expired in August and, as far as the Newton City Clerk's office could learn, has not been used.

Miss Milman recently caused a sensation in the Back Bay when she threatened to jump from the roof of her sweetheart's home after failing to find him at home. The next day she was sentenced in Newton Court to Sherborn Reformatory on the charge of being a stubborn child. She appealed and is now out on bail awaiting trial in Superior Court.

The romance struck a snag when Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Milman, soon after learning of the couple's matrimonial intentions, set up an objection on the grounds that the young people were of different religious faiths.

TWO TAKEN IN BACK BAY FOR BREAK

Patrolman James Kerrigan and House Detective Michael Coughlin of the Copley-Plaza Hotel were badly used up in a free-for-all fight near the hotel early today after they had apprehended two men who had broken into a tobacco store at No. 175 Dartmouth street.

They gave their names as John T. Murphy, twenty-two, address unknown, and Edwin Dwight, twenty-five, address unknown. They are charged with breaking and entering.

According to the police Coughlin saw the two men break into the store and rushed out of the hotel. When they came out of the store, he started to question them. Patrolman Kerrigan, who was nearby, saw the scuffle and rushed to assistance of Coughlin. For several minutes the quartet were battling all over the street. Kerrigan's uniform was badly torn. At Police Headquarters it was said they both have prison records.

LOVE FOR PETS MAY COST LIFE

Woman Plunges 25 Feet Off Roof, Ignoring Warning to Feed Squirrels

Attleboro, Sept. 1.—On the roof of the Mackie private hospital today half a dozen squirrels patter aimlessly, wondering as well as squirrels can wonder if their friend and benefactor has forgotten them.

But Miss Alice Davis, sixty-two-year-old patient at the hospital, has not forgotten them, even if she now is in another hospital and even if she may never again climb to the Mackie roof to greet her furry companions.

Miss Davis may die because of her interest in the squirrels because she would not let a day go by without visiting and feeding them.

WAS DAILY "RITUAL."

For a number of months past the elderly hospital patient has been in the habit of going to the roof of the hospital.

A short time after her arrival at the hospital she made acquaintance with the timid creatures and from scolding her from the trees they descended to feed daily from her hands.

It became an every-day ritual between the woman and her four-footed friends and the squirrels came to know the time for their feeding and always assembled beforehand.

STILL REMEMBERS THEM.

But yesterday something happened. Miss Davis became dizzy when she reached the roof and plunged to the ground—twenty-five feet.

She was picked up and rushed to the Sturdy Memorial Hospital, where she was found to have suffered internal injuries and a number of broken ribs.

The friend of the squirrels may die through her love for the animals—but though the squirrels wonder, she has not forgotten them.

LYNN MAN HELD IN MYSTERY DEATH OF FRIEND

Michael Curran of No. 34 Buffum street was locked up at police headquarters on the charge of manslaughter in connection with the death Sunday night of Frank E. Sleeper, a shoecutter, of No. 49 Hand street.

Sleeper was found unconscious by Patrolman Mackessey at Blake and Mulberry streets. He was taken to the Lynn Hospital, where he was treated for alcoholism and then returned to the police station.

He was again taken to the hospital, where he died. He was examined by the medical examiner, who said that death resulted from a fracture of the skull.

The police charge that the men had been together and that they had engaged in a fist fight.

BOBBY JONES FIGHTING HARD TO QUALIFY

M'KENSIE CONTINUES FINE PLAY

Washington Youth Plays First Nine in 36; Has Hotal of 107 for 27 Holes

Oakmont, Pa., Sept. 1 (A.P.)—Haze again hovered over the lowlands of the Oakmont Country Club course today as 121 golfers resumed the qualification rounds of the National amateur championship, thirteen of yesterday's starters having retired from the competition.

Scores for the 18 holes today added to those of yesterday will produce sixteen men who will eliminate each other at match play the remainder of the week, with the final event on Saturday.

From yesterday's results followers of the game predict that when the final list is chosen tonight many of the great performers of past tournaments will be missing, including the veterans, Chick Evans and Bob Gardner of Chicago. The qualifying list was cut to sixteen this year. In past championships it has been thirty-two.

The youthful Roland MacKenzie of Washington leads the field at 71, with Bobby Jones of Atlanta, the champion, second in line with 73. Jones was among the early starters today, MacKenzie driving away on his first round an hour later.

The champion, paired again with young Carter, got away shortly after 10 a. m. Jones missed a short putt on the first green and went down in par 5. Carter's second overrolled the green into a ditch. His recovery was beautiful. He went down for a birdie four.

On the second Bobby's powerful drive carried him to within easy striking distance of the pin. He was on in two and sank his second for a par four. Carter found the rough with his drive. His pitched out nicely and made it in par.

The amateur king's second shot on the fifth hole found a deep pit to the left of the green. His pitched out to within ten feet of the pin. His first putt missed the cup by a few inches and he went down in five, whenever par. Carter was on in two. He made it in par four.

Bobby was having difficulty with the traps. His drive on the par three sixth was in a sand pit to the rear of the green. But he came out nicely, the ball rolling near the cup. He missed the eight-foot putt, making the hole in one over par. Carter's drive also found a trap. He was on to, barely missed a long putt on his third, and, like Jones, took a four.

The trunk Atlantan made the seventh in par four. He was one in two, but missed a ten-foot putt for a birdie. Carter made it in par.

Jones was on the edge of the eighth green in one. He needed three putts, resigstering one over par. Bobby's putting was very weak. Many of his green shots were short by inches, while others rolled past the cup. The champion's companion was down in par 2. The Western titleholder sunk a beautiful twenty-foot putt on his third.

On the 457 yard ninth, Bobby was on the green in two, after a powerful uphill drive. He took two putts for a birdie four. Carter's drive found a trap. He made it in par five.

The cards:

Jones, out	5	4	4	5	3	4	4	5	4	—38
Carter, out	4	5	4	5	4	4	5	4	5	—41

Francis Ouimet had a 39 at each turn today. The former champion shot fine golf until he reached the fifth. Here his drive found a small hole in the fairway and he was forced to slash twice before he brought it out. He had a seven on the par four hole.

Donald Carrick, the Canadien, paired with Ouimet, had a 39 at the turn.

MacKenzie continued his sensational play during the first nine. He made the turn in 36, one under par. The Washington youth was shooting a wonderful game. He was master of both fairway and greens. His card at the turn, the lowest turned in during the entire morning, showed one three, seven fours and one five, including three birdies. The card:

Mackenzie:
Out	4	5	4	4	4	4	4	3	4	—36

Added to his 81 for the first 18 holes yesterday, Mackenzie had 107 for 27 holes. He was on his game and those in the gallery felt sure that he would continue his great playing during teh final nine, giving him the medalist honors.

Few Veterans Will Remain With Yanks

New York, Sept. 1.—Up to the present and including the return of Jim (Red) Marquis, a right-handed hurler, to the St. Jos' club in the Western League, the Yankees have cast twenty-seven men adrift from their playing roster. This record of a sort is expected to stand for some time.

Manager Huggins has been dissatisfied with the club and it is no secret that many of the veterans with the Yankees this year will pastime in other liveries when another Summer rolls around. Huggins has had a long conference on the subject with Bob Connery, who in recent years has acted as chief of staff for the mite manager.

Here is a list of the men who rumor has it will remain in Yankee uniforms: Pennock, Shocker, Henry Johnson and Jones are the pitchers. Among the other players, Combs, Gehrig, Paschal and Bengough will be with the team next season.

Hoyt and Shawkey are considered by the Yankee management as good trading material, which means they are on the block. Wanninger, Pipp, Ward, Dugan, Meusel, Schang, Shanks and Ernie Johnson will be used in trades, it is thought.

Ruth will be a fixture and the fact that he is going to get into shape up in the Canadian woods this Fall seems to forecast a staging of a "come-back" in 1926.

There are numerous youngsters slated to report to the Yankees this Fall and next Spring at the training camp in St. Petersburg.

Dickerson Drives Two Winners at Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—Anna Bradford's Girl, a brown mare, owned by the Arden Homestead stables, Goshen, N. Y., and driven by Dickerson, rambled home an easy winner in the $2,000 feature race of the initial program of the Grand Circuit at the State fair park here. The race meeting marked the first Grand Circuit racing in Milwaukee.

Only one other race was on the card, this being the two-year-old trot for a stake of $600. The race was won by Peter Maltby, brown colt, also owned by the Arden Homestead stables, and driven by Dickerson.

Lynn to Have New Field and Stadium

It was voted last night to give the city of Lynn an athletic field and stadium. This step was taken by the Lynn Stadium committee, headed my Mayor McPhetres and consisting of nine business men of the city. A tract of land known as the "Black Field" will be purchased from John Sheehan for $37,000.

The property is valued at $81,000, the rest of the money going toward development of the land. Work will start immediately and it is expected that the field will be ready for play by October 1.

Win May Put Braves In Sixth Place

By NICK FLATLEY

Grover Cleveland Alexander was standing on the cellar stairs today. He was all ready to knock the Braves down into the set tubs when they tried to climb the steps. The Tribe can emerge from last place this afternoon by beating the Cubs. The Tribe should do that little thing, being a better ball club than the enemy.

Alexander, however, is always a tough hurdle. He doesn't pitch as often as he used to, but when he goes in he has plenty of mound craft. He makes up in knowledge for the loss of his dazzling speed. The tougher they come, though, the better the Braves like them.

If the natives had only performed against the Cubs and Phils as they have against the Pirates and the Giants, the gang of them would be up fighting for the pennant at this particular minute. The present series is a fifty-fifty affair, each team having collected two pastimes.

Our Braves can flit gracefully into sixth place this afternoon, also the staggering Phils being but a fractional game above. The Tribe will climb this week, no matter what happens, and with the Dodgers here for a four game engagement, they should be the foundation for a first division berth.

JESS BARNES, winning his fourth game of the home stand, was the impressive figure in the Monday cleanup, but the real hero was Frank Wilson, late of Boston College. Frank was with the Tribe last Fall, and this Spring. He was raw and frightened. He had speed, and didn't know what to do with it. So they sent sent him to Worcester. Young Wilson is living proof that the Braves knew what they were doing when they parked Casey Stengel down in the center of the State.

Wilson is back, a finished ball player. He's a flash on the bases, and goes after things in the garden with the speed that is necessary at the Wigwam. And he stands at the plate as if he knew he could hit. He isn't fooled any more.

He reeled off four in a row yesterday. The first was a hopper over the pitcher's head that the fleet youngster beat easily. The next was a burning liner past short. The third was a perfect bunt, fielded perfectly by the agile Kaufman. The last was a tremendous smack to right, that should have been a double. But Frank used his speed and walked into third.

That bit proved he can hit as big leaguers should. He was in the hole, and refused to be fooled. He worked the count to three and two, and took his full, healthy swing at the cripple that came over. He poked one hot base knock to left, another to right. He dribbled slows to both sides of the diamond. Kids who hit to all sides worry the enemy, and delight their managers.

THE Braves have been seeking a young outfielder who could slug. Jimmy Welsh proved himself a future star, and anchored himself to a job. But the rest of the patrols were shaky. Felix is great in spots, but fades through a long stretch. Neis is subject to injury. Mann murders southpaws, but can't hit right-handers. Harris promised much in the spring, but found the big league too tough. He needs seasoning. If Wilson can deliver the problem will be solved.

With Frank and Welsh on the sides, centerfield could be shared by the veterans, who could divide the work sufficiently to save their various soft spots. As time goes along, the future of the Braves look brighter and brighter.

Wigwam Sidelights

ANY HIGH had six snappy assists in the first three innings, more than a club sacker usually gets in as many games. Andy is very, very good in the field.

MANAGER MARANVILLE had to insert himself when one of his infielders pulled a charley horse. Rabbit Maranville can't a hot double in his one time at bat.

THE football coaches are beginning to desert the orchard. Tom Keady entrains today for Quantico, and Frank Cavanaugh gets busy with his Eagle squad.

B. A. A. Stars in N. Y. 'Casey' Meet

Leo Larrivee, the young Holy Cross collegian, who performed so well in the middle-distance races indoors last Winter, will head the list of B. A. A. entries in the international night track meet of the Knights of Columbus at the Yankee Stadium on September 14. Larrivee will be a starter in the special mile.

The other members of the Boston Athletic Association team in the "Casey" meet are Ray Robertson, Jake Driscoll, Earl Dudley, Frank Burns, N. H. Bates, W. C. Baldwin and Charles C. Sansone. The first named five are quarter-milers, and from them Coach Ryder will select one to represent Boston in the special 440-yard race.

Chapman Again Ready for Race Grind

George Chapman, America's faced champion for five consecutive years and recognized as one of the greatest cyclists of all times, has fully recovered from his recent illness.

In fact, George was only tired out as a result of having taken part in more than 50 paced races this year. When he collapsed over in New York during a race a week ago Sunday, his physician sent him to Lakewood, N. J.

"A complete rest with plenty of sleep was all that "Chappie" needed," said the doctor. Upon the request of Nat Butler, Chapman was again examined Sunday. The M. D's report was that George's sojourn in the pines of the New Jersey health resort has enabled the champ to regain his strength rapidly.

When informed that "Chappie" was right, Butler immediately engaged him to compete in Saturday's Record Hour Race. Four other riders will start, but Butler will await the outcome of tonight's Newark race before naming the other riders.

Trotters Compete for Big Purses

Milwaukee, Sept. 1.—Six of the fastest horses in the Grand Circuit are listed to start in the $5,000 purse offering of the Hotel Men's Association in the second meeting of the circuit at State Fair Park, here today. They are: Todd Hart, The Great Lullwater, Truax, Thompson Dillon, Hollycrod Jessie and Tolus Boy.

Local Golfers To Compete In Maine Open

By BILL GRIMES

All roads lead to Poland Springs, Me., where the Maine Open will be played on Thursday and Friday. Many of the professionals who were at the Essex County Club for the P. G. A. qualifying round yesterday, left last night and will practice over the course for the next few days.

The Maine Open is one of the best annual tournaments held in New England. It draws a fast field every year and this year will be no exception regardless of the fact that the Nationals are being played in Pittsburgh.

Poland is a real golf course. It is by far the best in the State. The rolling country puts a premium on good second shots. The greens at Poland are wonderful. They are very large, fast and true.

Willie Ogg, who lead the field in the P. G. A. qualifying round at Essex is at Poland today. Willie is shooting great golf at present and he should be up near the top of the list by Friday night. Donald Vinton and Bert Nicoll will arrive at Poland this afternoon, as will George Aulbach and Joe Stiles.

The Maine open will be a 72-hole medal play tournament.

When the members of Sandy Burr see the results of Ralph Thomas' two rounds at Essex yesterday they will doubtless wish that they had extended an invitation to him to play against Willie Macfarlane, the United States open champion and Jim Barnes, the holder of the British title, two weeks from today. Macfarlane and Barnes are booked to play Jack Stait of Hartford Golf Club and Herbert Lagerblade of Bristol, Ct., in a 36-hole exhibition match on September 15.

Lagerblade is the New England open champion while Stait is billed as the holder of the Sandy Burr record. Stait shot a 71 at Sandy Burr during the New England championships but Thomas has also shot that course in the same figures. Lagerblade is a steady golfer but far from a match for players possessing the less ability than Willie Macfarlane and Jim Barnes.

The Sandy Burn Country Club is taking a great gamble using Stait as an exhibition player. He was leading the field at the start of the fourth and finals round at the New Englands yesterday when, when the gallery began to watch his play he blew wide open and Lagerblade won the title.

Although Thomas is not a world's champion on the links, he is a far better golfer than the committee at Sandy Burr have been lead to believe. He was 78 in the morning round at Essex but in the afternoon he slipped around in 73. Anyone who can shoot Essex in those figures is a real golfer and deserves an opportunity to play in a match with the world's leading club swingers, especially when the exhibition is being staged by his home club.

U. S. Davis Cup Team Named

New York, Sept. 1 (A.P.).—The United States tennis team for defence of the Davis cup has been officially named by Julian S. Myrick, chairman of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association Davis cup committee. It will consist of William T. Tilden, William M. Johnston, Vincent Richards and R. Norris Williams. The latter has been appointed captain.

The players will go to Philadelphia at the end of the week for practice on the turf courts of the Germantown Cricket Club, where the challenge round will open Thursday, September 10. Winners of the inter-zone final between Australia and France on Friday, Saturday and Monday at Forest Hills, N. Y., will face the American team for the cup.

Union Labor Bars Men From Game

Washington, Sept. 1 (A.P.).—As a part of a campaign by the American Federation of Labor to bring "economic pressure" against the Philadelphia American League Baseball Club, all union men in the national capital were ordered today by their officers to stay away from the Washington-Philadelphia game here.

FINAL FORE RIVER 'PURE' TOURNEY SEPT. 11

The Fore River Club will hold its final outdoor amateur boxing show of the season on Friday evening, September 11, at Fore River Field, Quincy. Competition will take place in the 118, 126 and 147 pound open classes, and the 135 and 160 pound novice classes. Entries will close with Pat Maley, No. 874 Bowdoin street, Dorchester, Wednesday, September 9.

Senators Will Win Easily, Says Harris

New York, Sept. 1.—Connie Mack brought his battered Philadelphia cohorts back from the West to give battle to Washington in the first round of a final stand to rescue the American league leadership from the tightening grip of Clark Griffith's Senators.

A two-game series, starting at the capital today, will be followed by six more struggles between the leading contenders before the close of the season on October 4. Four games will be played in Philadelphia, on September 7, 8 and 9, after which the clubs meet in two closing contests at Washington.

"Let the Athletics set the pace in August," said Bucky Harris, several weeks ago, "we will catch them when they blow in September and finish with plenty to spare."

As the teams look today, with the Senators three and one-half games ahead, that prediction has been partly fulfilled. The road trip of the Athletics through the West dimmed their pennant hopes. Two victories in twelve starts constituted the Philadelphia record, the young team crumbling under the strain, to finish with six consecutive defeats.

SEEDED NET PLAYERS SURVIVE AT ESSEX C. C.

Manchester-by-the-Sea, Sept. 1.—All events in the opening day of the first men's invitation tennis tournament at the Essex Country Club ran true to form. A selected group of sixteen nationally known players started the competition. When both the singles and doubles reached the semi-final stage not a single upset had occurred.

The four survivors who will make up two semi-final round matches of international color are the starlets of seeded players. Lucien Williams of Chicago will meet Manuel Alonzo of the Spanish Davis Cup team, while Brian Norton, the former resident of South Africa, will play Cranston Holman of California in the matches this morning.

6 BAY STATE PROS QUALIFY FOR TITLE GOLF TOURNEY

Manchester, Sept. 1.—Thirty-one pros competed in the qualifying round for the Professional Golf Association championship to be played in Chicago the latter part of this month. The play was for 36 holes.

The six to qualify were: William Ogg, 145; G. Aulbach, 149; T. Dean, 150; R. Thomas, 150; C. Dom Bach, 151, and Jos Stein, 152, all of whom have wired their intention to play in the Chicago tournament.

GREAT EASTERN CIRCUIT RACES OPEN TODAY

READVILLE HAS FINE PROGRAM

Plenty of Class Will Be Seen in Three Days' Racing Which Opens Circuit

Gus Daly's Selections at Readville Today

FIRST RACE.
Two-Year-Old Trot.
Bright Dawn, Rosedale, Tipple Volo.

SECOND RACE.
2:12 Trot.
Excotillo, Jack De Saulles, Kittie Belwin.

THIRD RACE.
2:18 Pace.
Dorothy Dillon, Amy K., Helen Sunshine.

By GUS DALY

This afternoon at Readville, the Great Eastern Circuit will usher in the first week of their five which is listed for the light harness racer.

Everything has been done by those in charge to make the initial meet one to be remembered, and although the "Grand Circuit" trotters and pacers will not be here to take the word there is plenty of class distributed in all of the stakes and purse events to assure devotees of this healthful pastime of three days of good racing.

Gus Daly

An innovation this year will be the trotting at the one and one-eighth mile distance (three heats) for 2:12 trotters and the same is slated for the 2:18 trotters for a $2,000 purse. As no records are attached to the winner of these events some fast racing should result.

The match race between Guesswork, Jennie H. and Johnny Quirk, which is carded for Wednesday afternoon, should draw a large crowd, for each of the above mentioned have a host of admirers and it has long been a question which is the best. Then the two and three-year-old colts will appear in the $2,000 stakes number among the very best that have paraded around a two-lap oval in these parts in years.

Bright Dawn, the two-year-old of Frank Burke's stable of Byfield, looks like a real champion and Lightning Flash and Viola Sunshine of the C. H. Traiser entry in the three-year-old division look most promising.

With good weather, the racing for the next three days should be fully as good as the excellent brand displayed all through the Bay State and Orange County Circuit, where track records were spilled quite frequently.

Entries for today:

Foals of 1925, trotting, $2,000: Alice Etawah, Lydia Hopkins, Jean Cromwell, Rosetta, Susan Volo, Tippie Volo, Rose Dixie Trathen and Bright Dawn.

2:12 class, trotting, one and one-eighth miles: three heats; $2,000: Excotillo, Miss Oakwood, Dwinger Peter, Jack DeSaulles, Plain Mary, Eva Victory Lenn, Kittie Belwyn, Sadie Westby, Barton, Frances Irwin, Eugen Tee, Mac Muffett.

2:18 class, pacing, $600: Dorothy Dillon, Amy K., Mal Direct, Helen Sunshine, Lady Ewers, Don Setzer, Miss Coffin, Gladiolus.

SOUTH SHORE TENNIS STARS WILL COMPETE

The South Shore tennis championship will be held at the Hatherly Country Club, North Scituate Beach, starting Saturday and ending on Labor Day. Acceptance of entries will continue till tomorrow evening and may be either mailed or telephoned. Those interested may call the Hatherly Country Club, Scituate 8411, or communicate with Roger Manning, chairman of the tennis committee, at Minot, Mass.

Will Race at Readville Today

$ BOSTON YACHT CLUB WILL CRUISE

By GEORGE W. GRIMM,
Yachting Editor

Mosquito Fleet Yacht Club of South Boston, one of the leading yacht organizations in the Dorchester Bay Yachting Association, is making plans for its coming cruise to Marblehead on Saturday, which will last three days and finish at the Club House in the Peninsular district on Monday evening.

Although not much of a racing yacht club Commodore Edward L. Hopkins has high praise for one vessel in particular and that is the "Chewink" owned by Michael O'Leary. The Chewink is a Class 'A' yacht and during the last few years has garnered many trophies.

Already over twenty yachts have made a report to Capt. William Hickey of their intention of making the week end cruise, which will no doubt be chock full of thrills. The fleet is planning on setting all sails at 2 o'clock and leaving South Boston on Saturday p. m. with the Flagship Isabella, a cruising yacht of about 45 feet, owned by Commodore Edward L. Hopkins, in the lead.

Commodore Hopkins has been the chief mogul of the Mosquito Fleet Yachting Club, holding the office for two periods of six years each in fourteen years time. Among the other officers are Vice-Commodore Edward Snow, Rear-Commodore Larry Conley, Fleet Captain William Hickey, Daniel J. Donavon secretary, Cornelius Driscoll, treasurer and the directors, Ralph Morton and John Cusick.

At the present time the Mosquito Fleet is composed of some seventy-five yachts of all classes. This yacht club, as member of the Dorchester Bay Yathing Association, has been joining with full support at all times for the improvement of Dorchester Bay developments, along with the other clubs which number nine.

A monster Bazaar will be held on the grounds and in the Club House of the Mosquito Fleet Yacht Club on October 16. The purpose is a get-together and to gather sufficient funds to do recommissioning work on the premises.

Frick's Comment

CONSIDER THE FEMALE.

WHEN Mr. Kipling wrote his now famous line about the female of the species, he said a mouthful. She was a deadly little bit of humanity to start with, and year by year she's growing a bit more deadly. The "womanly touch" has changed many a "manly destiny." Even the field of sports is not immune. Take baseball and prize fighting for instance.

Benny Leonard, king of the lightweights, gives up a title worth $100,000 a year, because his mother wants him to quit the game.

Tom Gibbons, sturdy old master of boxing science, retires because his wife's health has been wrecked by the worry and strain of his many battles.

Jack Dempsey, still an official champion, has virtually retired, and there isn't a man living to deny that his wife is the influence behind the throne.

Of course there are womanly influences that work the other way. "Ruby Bob" Fitzsimmons' wife, was an enthusiastic fan, taking an active part in her husband's career. It was her influence that kept Bob going through many tough years.

No one is more responsible for Young Stribling's success than his mother. She has encouraged him from the start and she is always in his corner when he fights.

Midget Smith's sister used to train him and act in his corner when she was permitted. She handled his business affairs as well, and was as capable a manager as you'd find anywhere.

Mrs. Harry Wills always looks after Harry's training diet, supervising food and his workouts and supervising much of his finances, too, if the truth be known, and doing it well.

That's the "Womanly touch."

In Baseball, Too.

ASTUTE managers will tell you that wives can make or break a good ball club. What is more, they are a power to be reckoned with when the time comes to sign players to a new contract.

The players themselves may be easily satisfied, but wives will battle to the last penny. "I've got so and so ready to sign, but his wife is still holding out," isn't a joke any longer, it's a fact and a tough one to surmount.

AND the end isn't in sight. In other and greater forms of sport—in tennis, golf, swimming—the woman is not content to sit and offer encouragement to her lord and master, if any. She goes in for them herself, and holds her own with the male, too.

There's nothing to be done about it and probably it's a good thing. Certainly, the woman influence hasn't done any great harm to date. Though it has changed the female from a clinging vine to a sturdy oak thereby weakening the position of the lordly male once so pompous. Back in those romantic 80's they referred to men as the "better half." Perhaps he is yet. But he isn't until he proves it. Mr. Kipling certainly knew something, and the rest of the world is learning very rapidly.

FORDHAM GRID SQUAD WILL REPORT

New York, Sept. 1—Fordham Field is in perfect shape for the starting of football practice tomorrow. Trainer Jake Weber has all the equipment in order and the area around Coach Gargan expects will be outfitted and started on its work without any loss of time.

Although he has a complete set, Coach Gargan is not wasting any time getting his men to work. Fordham has a hard nine-game schedule ahead of it, and the Maroon is lacking the necessary reserves to tackle such an exhaustive list.

The first game confronting the Fordham eleven this year will bring his Providence College team from Rhode Island to The Bronx field. While the visitors are not the hardest sort of opposition they should serve to give the locals a strong workout.

Gargan believes he will be able to use at least two complete teams. Against the Providence outfit and that he will be able to get some line of an idea how his men shape up under fire. The clash is scheduled for October 3.

RUTH PENITENT HOPES TO STAY IN GAME

half way and play ball for him again."

Prior to hearing from Ruth, Colonel Ruppert had been assured by Huggins and announced he would have the latter manager to the end of his present contract.

Ruth arrived today from Chicago on the Twentieth Century Limited and before leaving the train could see that he was taken in charge by Rev. Edward Quinn, Benedictine priest, who has been a lifelong friend and counselor of the Babe and called in the then nurse from Hotel.

AT WIFE'S BEDSIDE.

There Ruth went to the bedside of his wife who has been under the care of two nurses as a result of a mental breakdown. Shortly after word he received news arrived of her approaching term that Mrs. Ruth's condition was very grave, published reports of this were denied and that there were differences between them. He declared it was "all bunk."

Although considerably upset, the idea of the $5,000 fine failed to phase him and upon the advice of Dr. Peterred to it repeatedly, "too much," then joked about it, saying that a new record in baseball.

"If I'd been batting .300 this never would have happened," he said.

Ruth expressed confidence that he would get a "break" after he had given Colonel Ruppert a piece of his mind.

BABE AND WIFE IN TEARS.

There was a dramatic touch when the big fellow reached the bedside of his wife, who is seriously ill at her hotel.

His wife was Ruths' first concern, and both broke into tears as he reached her. Soon Ruth pacified the Babe sought to console her, tears running down his cheeks as he assured her there was no truth in sensational stories about him.

The scene apparently remained any basis in reports that a breach had arisen between Ruth and his wife.

Mrs. Ruth is suffering from an infected finger, as well as a partial breakdown.

RUPPERT UNMOVED

Meanwhile Ruppert declared his position on Ruth's part had not changed since hearing the detailed report of the Yankee owner. Previous stated he would back Huggins to the limit and fully concurred in the action taken.

At the same time, Col. Ruppert said he would be willing to give Ruth a hearing as soon as possible.

"I haven't yet heard from the Babe," he said, "but he can see me any time. I'll listen to his story, but I can say now there is no change in my attitude. Ruth has misbehaved and that's all there is to it."

Players Take Side of Huggins

New York, Sept. 1. It looks as though George Herman Ruth will have to do the quitting. Manager Miller Huggins shows no inclination to do the crawling. He is the pilot of the Yankees after reading the blast the Babe let loose on him here. Hug seemed to have no regrets as to the future, no more appeals Ruth may make to Jacob Ruppert or both.

And the rest of the Yankees coming now on their way to their unfortunate season, principally on their home lot in the Bronx. They were certainly the word although they all got a hearty out of that part of the Babe's statement which admitted that Ruth should have done in St. Louis one night and took a long auto ride because of the extreme heat.

There isn't a particle of doubt that the majority of the Yankees feel that their manager took the proper action regarding the Babe. Huggins in reply to a question about these lines said today said of course, the fact that Ruth appeared to be violating training rules at will created much dissatisfaction among his team mates.

This feeling of resentment at the freedom allowed Ruth undoubtedly cost the Yankees a chance for the team in Hug's opinion and had not a little to do with the poor showing the Yankees made in this, their last swing around the western circuit.

Every indication points to the fact there is little sympathy being wasted on the Babe by his fellow Colonel Ruppert's employes.

MAJOR LEAGUERS FOR POST SEASON GAMES

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Joe Pirrone announced on his return from the east that he has signed several major league stars to play here after the close of the season.

How Jim Maloney Feels About Solomon

"How does Maloney feel over being knocked out by King Solomon?"

We shot this question at Johnny McGrath, manager of the South Boston heavyweight, as he stood on the lawn in front of his Summer home at Cohasset. As McGrath stood there in the moonlight decorated with a pair of white knickers, a white silk shirt, flowing tie, woolen stockings and a dapper pair of golf shoes one would not have taken him for what the milk sops like to term "a manager of a prize fighter."

"I object to your saying Maloney was knocked out," answered McGrath slowly as he weighed each word. "The final blow was delivered after the bell rang and so couldn't be a knockout."

"When we saw how Maloney fared after coming out of the other [illegible] quarter

McGrath didn't quite like the wording of this question either, but he answered it

"Maloney was stunned when he found out Solomon had put the big punch over," continued McGrath. "Jim didn't think there was a man in the world who could knock him out. He thought his jaw was punch proof. The day following the bout, he was downhearted. He couldn't get over the fact that Solomon had dropped him to the canvas twice.

"I SUGGESTED to Maloney that he take a vacation. He did [illegible] Cape for a week. I visited him [illegible] at Nauset Manor [illegible]

BOSTON COLLEGE FOOTBALL CAMPAIGN STARTS

4 VETERANS RETURN TO HEIGHTS

Eagle Must Work Hard to Get in Shape for Strong Early-Season Opponents

By BILL CONSODINE

Major Frank Cavanaugh greeted about twenty members of the Boston College football squad at University Heights where the first practice session of the season was held today.

After the equipment was given out Cavanaugh addressed the Eagle gridsters and a light work-out followed. Until the opening of school, the candidates will report for morning and afternoon practice sessions.

While the Eagles will be really hard hit in at the ends, Grattan O'Connell and Leo Hallinan were the veterans last Fall and now it develops [illegible] will be back at college eleven this autumn.

O'Connell was operated on late in June for a kidney injury sustained in the last grid campaign and since then has dropped twenty-five pounds, from 193 to 168. He has been doing light workouts and according to latest reports, he may be able to play late in the season.

Hallinan took part in practice just before the Holy Cross game last November and was forced out of football. He was unable to play basketball during the Winter and resumed his captaincy late in January.

Al Cox, former Boston Latin School star and Frank Sullivan are [illegible] the two end positions as has Al Dumas, a former Natick [illegible] Any of these three are likely for the Eagle end positions.

Jack Hardy at tackle ought to bolster up the line considerably according to Coach Cavanaugh.

"If Hardy can make the team, then it will be some team," said Cav. "He has the weight and the fire for the game."

The schedule is particularly hard for us this Fall as it means that the morale of the team must be sustained over two early season objectives, the Haskell Indians game on Columbus Day and the game with the West Virginia eleven, the second week in November.

They're the ones we have to cope with.

"The Haskell team wouldn't be so particularly dangerous if we hadn't taken them into camp last Fall by such a big score. They would have minded defeat by a touchdown or two. Now they will be ready for any form of attack when they come to the Hub and we will have to play to the limit to win.

"West Virginia will also have plenty of strength and as it will be their New England debut, they will be right on their toes. They have lost Cupie Spears as a coach, but Rogers, their new man, has some player in his day and ought to know the game. Remember Spears may have left but some of the team that he developed there has gone.

"The games with Catholic University, Boston University and West Virginia Wesleyan will be tough ones, while every one knows just how much trouble Allegheny gave us last Fall when we were only able to win by one touchdown. Providence is coming along year by year and putting a better team on the field every fall.

"Just what Holy Cross will have for us on Nov. 28th, I don't know, but the game will have the same old thrills."

Gridiron Dashes

Notices were sent to members of the Connecticut Aggie football squad to report for practice next Monday at Storrs. Coach Jones hired his men to report promptly, because of the fact that the Aggies play Wesleyan on September 26, a day after college opens.

Jack Colling, George Burke, Barney McDermott and Lefty O'Connor, four prominent [illegible] schoolboy athletes, will enter Canisius University this Fall. Coach Lake Urban will welcome the Hub youngsters, who are sure to make good at Buffalo.

Marshall Klevenow, who teaches hard and clean football at Middlebury, reports that Green Mountain State gridsters will start on September 8. Captain Potter, Brosowsky, Mullen, Ehlert, McLaughlin, Novotny, Gruzele, Williams and Rice are dependable veterans.

'TWI' CLUBS MAY FORM PRO CIRCUIT

By JOE CASHMAN.

Only two games on the "Twi" card tonight and both far, far away Lowell will play at Nashua while Malden is visiting Salem.

There was a time when much criticism would be heard if a night passed by without a tilt being staged locally, but the fans no longer are incensed when they are unable to witness a game.

The Greater Boston entries are lacking more or less in class and color and the after-supper enthusiasts aren't particularly interested in when, where or how they perform.

Things may be different when an other season rolls around. At least the Hub fans hope so.

Indications are that the stronger clubs in the present circuit will start the 1926 season banded together as one of organized baseball's minor leagues.

And if this change comes to pass, it is dollars to doughnuts that a genuine Greater Boston twilight league, composed entirely of clubs in Boston and its suburbs, will spring up and the local fan will once more have an opportunity of enjoying a first-class ball game on the home town orchard after his day of toil.

"Twi" Chatter

Nashua isn't going to lose any post season series if it can help it. Manager Tom Whelan must leave next week to resume his duties as football coach at the University of Washington so the "Millionaires" have gone out and signed Ellis Ehrans, Georgetown star and a member of the Abbot team all season, to take the place. Barrett will go to third while Ehrans will play his regular position, shortstop, in the cash clashes.

If the "Twi" League becomes a minor circuit next season, rumor has it that President Davidson will become one of the officials of the Lowell club.

The league will have to buy a new pennant this year. A bunting was purchased for North Cambridge the first season but when the "Cantabs" repeated the following two seasons the league merely added the years' dates instead of buying new flags.

Elks Plan 'Pure' Ring Tourneys

True to its announced policy of fostering amateur athletics, Boston Lodge, No. 10, B. P. O. E., plans an active indoor season in boxing and track. According to plans now under consideration, the organization will hold another indoor track and field meet this Winter and will again promote amateur boxing, and in an effort to popularize the glove game among the simon-pures and the lovers of clean sport will stage weekly or bi-weekly tournaments at the Boston Arena, with the price of tickets ranging from 50 cents to $1.

The first of these tourneys will be held Wednesday evening, Sept. 16 with competition in five classes—110, 118, 126, 160 pounds and heavyweight divisions and George C. Freeman, chairman of the Boxing Committee and George Dannis, who will have immediate charge of the competitions, announce that every effort will be made to create interest among the novices as well as among the stars.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 41 Golf Champions, "Golf's Most Successful Teacher," says Chick Evans.

While the tendency in the address is to have the hands low rather than high, the player must be on watch that he doesn't fall into the error of dropping the hands too far down. The sketch pictures how this can be overdone. Reaching too far down with the hands during the address causes the arms to straighten out too much while at the same time it pulls the body over into too much stoop. Power is lost when there is too much stoop, however much you may feel, when stooped away over, that you are going to hit harder. The hard hits originate through freedom of bodily action and the stoop, as shown in the sketch, does not encourage freedom.

FISHING BOAT RACES STILL UP IN AIR

Gloucester, Sept. 1.—Whether international fishing schooner racing will be revived this Fall is undecided, as local followers await word from Halifax, N. S., relative to a match race between fishing vessels representing the United States and Canada.

The last series was a no-decision affair, neither the Bluenose of Lunenburg or the Columbia of Gloucester capturing the international trophy. The Columbia, at present fitted for salt fishing, will remain in port for several days pending some definite announcement regarding racing.

An examination on a marine railway recently, revealed a new rudder post, presumably damaged when she grounded on the mud bank at Essex, when launched. This is believed to have seriously interfered with her performance in racing trim. It is said that it would take $10,000 to equip her for the races and entertain the representatives from Canada.

The Haligonian, hailed when launched last Spring as a prospective Canadian contender, is now classed as the proverbial dark horse of the banks. Little has been heard of her speed or general performance. At last reports the Bluenose, several times winner, was eliminated yet a certain element would be pleased to have that craft again pitted against the Columbia.

Ring Flashes

The Suffolk A. A. announces that details have been completed for a ten-round bout between Red Chapman New England featherweight champion, and Cliff Sugge, who claims both the New England featherweight and lightweight titles, to be staged at Mechanics Building on September 11.

Chapman defeated Mascart and Dundee in his last Boston starts. Will he also be able to nail the sensational Sugge who has won fifty-eight straight bouts?

Winning fifty-eight ring tussles in a row is a wonderful record in view of the fact the Newport youth tackled all-comers.

Jack Sharkey, New England heavyweight champion, has started training for his ten-round bout with Johnny Risko of Cleveland which will be staged by the Armory A. A. at Mechanics Building on September 17. Risko has battled Jack Renault, Romero Rojas and a flock of other big fellows. He is a big aggressive fellow with a punch and is confident he will smash out a win in his New England debut.

Eddie Stanton writes from Chicago that he is managing Jimmy Finley, welterweight champion of the South. Finley has beaten Cowboy Padgett, Tommy Tilman, Wayne Smith, Tommy Freeman and a flock of other good boxers. Stanton would like to show Finley in Boston.

Al Mello, Lowell welterweight, who looks like one of the best ring prospects in New England, may soon be seen in action with Paul Doyle. The Boxing Commission recently ruled that Mello won't be permitted to meet any boxers of the set-up variety, which means he will have to take on fast steppers like Doyle, Bob Lowrie and Jimmy Jones.

"What do you think of Mello?" we asked Jack Malone the day after the St. Paul man worked out with the Lowell youngsters. "What kid is a comer," said Jack. "He bit me with a left on the jaw which caused me pain for several hours. He punches short and while coming in, which makes him a hard man to get away from."

Seven pugilistic aspirants, Tommy Duffey and Bob Jasse, have resumed training for a strenuous ring campaign this Winter. Duffey is out with a challenge to all boys in the flyweight class while Jasse has grown to the middleweight division.

DODGERS PAY HEAVY FOR CHARLIE GORGAN

Wichita, Kas., Sept. 1 (A.P.)—Charles Gorgan, purchased today by the Brooklyn Nationals, is rated the best shortstop in the Western League. His home is in Wagoner, Okla. The purchase price was announced as above $10,000.

Conley Wins Bout

Attleboro, Sept. 1.—Jimmy Conley won the decision over Harry Warren of Fall River in the main bout of the Attleboro A. A. at Hayward Field. The best bout of the evening was between Red Mauradian, Bridgewater, and Al Roberts, Fall River, in which the latter won on eight-round decision.

FLATLEY CALLS 'EM

Ruth a Victim.
Stars Know No Law.
Boston and Sport.
Thoughts on Crowds.

By NICK FLATLEY

BABE RUTH has to be in the news in a big way, at least three or four times a year. He couldn't hit home runs this season because he was a physical wreck. He was forced to play too soon after a serious operation. That wasn't his fault. It was the command of the club owners.

Now said owners are doing the big boy because he isn't delivering. Whatever the merits of the case, Ruth has the populace with him. After his sickness, it was a certainty that he would be unable to play his kind of baseball this Summer. He was pushed into the lineup for the effect he would have on the gate. He is not drawing them in now, so he has to be publicly branded as a bad performer. It's another of those things that club owners do to make the gang sore on the game. They always do 'em when the old pastime seems to be rolling along, set for unbounded prosperity.

Nick Flatley

MISTER RUTH isn't an ordinary mortal. He never has paid any attention to rules. He's good and he knows it. He can earn big money and he knows that, too. Just at present he's down, but he'll be back in the spotlight again. Much of his career is ahead. Fining him at this spot, and endeavoring to make him a supplicant, is probably a move toward reducing his salary. He gets a lot, but not nearly what he has attracted, for every club in baseball. He's too good a business man, however, to be affected by the present explosion. Baseball moguls do a lot of high and mighty things. They banish athletes with great abandon. But we doubt if they can exile the Rambino and get away with it. He has too much of a hold on the public heart. The boys will probably try, though, to get themselves in a big jam, and then spend a couple of years removing the disastrous effects. That's the way of the game.

NOT a few of the great characters in sport have had rules of their own. They don't perform like ordinary men, and they don't attempt to live that way. John L. Sullivan, great fighter, tossed off his drinks with every Tom, Dick and Harry. He was a rummy, as the boys say. It shortened his career, perhaps, but he was great over a long stretch. Aurelio Herrara, a crack jack lightweight when the division was F. B. of real fighters, trained on whiskey and black cigars. Mike Kelly, most picturesque of the old ball players, wasn't a Sunday school model. In our own day, Eddie Casey, wonder Harvard halfback was permitted to smoke cigarettes. The fags made him feel good, so he had 'em. Casey was not be fettered, as the literary chaps put it, and genius takes peculiar delight in proving that, if the pressure is put on.

BOSTON keeps right on being the sport capital of the country. All attendance records were smashed at the Davis Cup tennis matches and the Braves established a crowd figure that will go on the books and remain there for many a long day. When 30,000 fans or more turn out to watch a couple of ball games between two clubs fighting for last place in late August, the proper spirit is parked in the village that furnishes the throng. Boston is entitled to the best, but will support royally the just-pretty-good when the chance offers. Saturday's game was a tipoff to the local magnates, if the trouble with the Yankees isn't ironed out. You may take it from us that it will be, though.

MERMAIDS WILL COMPETE IN CHARLES

Over one hundred mermaids will appear in the Charles River at the women's amateur swimming races to be held at Nonantum Park, Auburndale, on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. All the leading swimming stars from all over New England will compete for honors.

The meet will be featured by the New England $30 yard championship, free style swim, which will have many starters, including Delma Carlstrom, the sensational young mermaid of Worcester; Margaret McSheehy, the Whitinsville flash; Margaret Long of Pawtucket, R. I.; Emma Lennon and Margaret Butler of the Boston Swimming Association besides the championship event, there is to be 100 yards breast stroke from scratch, 50 yards free style scratch and 50 yards novice swim race.

Fifty girl members of the Boston Swimming Association will give exhibitions in life saving, diving and all sorts of clever stunts known to water sports. Entries for the different events close with H. B. Penno, Boston Swimming Association, No 60 State street, city.

Pirate Fans Seek Parade

Washington, Sept. 1.—If Washington and Pittsburgh win the big league pennants there may be a parade of Pirate fans in the Nation's Capital. Anyway, the District Commissioners have received a letter from S. A. Pickering, of Pittsburgh, asking if it would be permissible to hold a world series evening day parade of 5,000 Pirate rooters. The letter has been turned over to the Police Department, which has jurisdiction over parades.

A TASTE OF HONEY — By Eric Maschwitz

A Story That Bares the Soul of a Woman Twice Cheated of the Love She Seeks honey-dripping voice?

Was she two persons, a Jekyll and Hyde of a woman, married to Tommy Masklyn, and the sound comfort of St. John's Wood, and yet another creature of the half world of mystery and intrigue!

His Friend's Wife

Aloud he said: "Won't you go on playing? We interrupted you when we came in."

"You liked that?"

"Very much, as I could hear it A tango, wasn't it?"

"Yes," Mrs. Masklyn replied. "A tango by Albeniz, one of the new Spanish school. You know—de Falla and that lot."

"Now, But won't you play it again?" he pleaded.

"Very well, since you ask me, Mr. Freyne. I'll try to pay you back for the pleasure your novels gave me."

So lazy was the cadence of the music and so pleasured is that Jerrold found himself relapsing into a sort of dream. In the candlesshine her skin looked dazzlingly white. As she played her eyes seemed not to be on the printed page before her, but lost in that queer incurious stare of hers which had ensnared him on their first meeting.

The last notes had died away before dinner was announced. It was now apparent to Jerrold that he was the only guest.

The dining-room was furnished much as the room they had just left, with fine and delicate things. A Fragonard drawing, some Japanese water-colors with beauty of line and economy of color. The glasses on the table were fine Venetian ware, shafts of lucent gold rising to bowls which held Burgundy like pools of blood in the heart of them.

Against this background of thin delicate beauty, Mrs. Masklyn moved with the splendor of her contrasted color. As the pictures, the furniture, the hangings were illusive, so was she lustrous. Her beauty in the darkness of her hair, in the vivid line of her lips, in the white curve of her neck which died away in the flame of her cheeks.

And what a dress that! More than a dress—a gesture, a sweep of genius from some great designer that fell from the shoulder-straps of golden flowers in lines which hid yet did not conceal the beauty of the wearer's body.

A City Made for Love

Over dinner the conversation flickered to and fro, touching upon current interests, with a dip into business as a concession to the host. Jerrold banished for the moment the questions which plagued him. He talked, with a modesty that was not assumed, about his own work, discussed his imminent departure for Varvasch with Gerda, who knew the city and was able to tell him a good deal about his future home.

"You'll have a flat in the Tiberstrasse, if you're wise," she told him. "They're not so expensive, and you get a gorgeous view over the river to the mountains. You'll be there for the Easter Carnival."

"And don't forget the wine they drink there," Masklyn put in. "Rather like Imperial Tokay, a gold an orange color, but too sweet for my taste."

"A city made for love," said Gerda, and looked across the table at Jerrold, letting her dark eyes brush him for a moment.

Her husband laughed. "I've heard that said about a great many places, Freyne—Venice, Monte Carlo, half a dozen others. You'll have more important business than that, looking after the peace of the Balkans. Varvasch is rather a storm centre. One's love would be apt to be interrupted by a bomb or a pistol shot."

"I think it will be an exile from love for Mr. Freyne." Gerda remarked, not looking at him. "I suppose you'll leave your fiancee in England, Mr. Freyne?"

That surprised him. He had not mentioned Elspeth to either Tommy or his wife.

She noted his surprise and smiled. "We know everything'" she said. "And, besides, I saw you with her at the opera on Saturday night. I was curious enough to ask about you both."

"This is where I feel flattered" laughed Jerrold. "I hope you had a good account of me?"

"Nothing but your name," Gerda said, taking an olive and resetting it as though nothing in the world were of greater importance. "The man I was with knew you by sight and told me that he had read about your engagement. The rest I worked out. I have a man, you see, who takes me to the opera while Tommy stays at home and works out how many saddles he ought to supply to the Armenian army. What did you think of the performance?"

"Very good—in some ways the best I ever heard. It seemed to have swell, something more to it."

"You like these Teutonic love tangles?" she asked him. "For my part I dislike to see those monstrous Brunhildes, so profound and energetic, trotting about looking like Britannia in the Lord Mayor's show. What did Wagner know about love?"

Taking the Barriers

"What do I know about love?"

"Well, you're engaged," put in Tommy Masklyn, "and your glass is empty."

"How dare you join in a discussion on love?" Gerda scolded. "You mere leather merchant! Leave such things to Mr. Freyne and me."

"But I'm a mere novelist," said Jerrold. "I don't claim to be a hand book to the tender passions."

"You are the author of 'The Gift of Continence,'" Gerda reminded him. "The most remarkable book on love for five years."

"Oh, come now!"

"I won't be told to 'come now,' Mr. Freyne. Though many people wouldn't agree with the philosophy you expounded, it's nevertheless a good book. You carried your subject before you with a fine violence We needed to hear the Puritan point of view'"

"You didn't agree with it, then?"

"I never agree with anyone—much"

"Now you're evading the issue. You think that Theodora should've come back to her husband in the end? Do you remember the story?"

"Why, of course I do—but I'm not sure that what suited your Theodora would do in every case. Do you imagine, for instance, that I should come back to Tommy—or that he would have me back—if I were to run away, say, with you or any other man? Would my conscience bring me home to St. John's Wood?"

If her last cry was a little too real, Masklyn was not aware of anything. He had long since retired from the conversation, and sat with a half-amused smile

"And don't forget the wine they drink there," Masklyn put in. "Rather like Imperial Tokay, a gold an orange color, but too sweet for my taste."

"A city made for love," said Gerda, and looked across the table at Jerrold, letting her dark eyes brush him for a moment.

Her husband laughed. "I've heard that said about a great many places, Freyne—Venice, Monte Carlo, half a dozen others. You'll have more important business than that, looking after the peace of the Balkans. Varvasch is rather a storm centre One's love would be apt to be interrupted by a bomb or a pistol shot."

Latest from Paris

Paris, France.

A VERY handsome evening cut out on smart fashionable line is sketched at the left. Black wirel is employed for this lovely creation. White fox fur is used as a bordering and as strips at each side and also for the cuffs. Heavy embroidery with silver tubular beads forms a beautiful trimming. A flag of white satin makes an attractive finish.

At the right is sketched a pretty dance frock of full beige chiffon and lace of the same shade. A V decolletage, not too deep, is made at the front and a much deeper one formed by a collar or scapular like arrangement is shown at the back. The rounded flounce is extremely full at the back, and the sash of chiffon tied in a large bow makes an admirable finish to this charming model.

WANTS HER FREEDOM

By Beatrice Fairfax

Who Occupies a Unique Position in the Writing World as an Authority on Problems of Love.

WHEN a girl assures a man who is seriously in love with her that she returns his love but doesn't wish ever to be tied down to any one man, what chance has he of winning her for his wife?

That is the question over which "Blond" as puzzled- as the following letter proves.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am twenty one years old. I have been going with a girl of twenty for about two years. During that time we have been pals in the true sense of the word. I love her dearly and she says she loves me.

Never Marry

"She has always declared that she will never get married because she can't think of herself as tied down to one person. At first I thought this was just a foolish idea of a girl of nineteen and didn't pay much attention to it. But recently we had a real heart to heart talk. And as we went more deeply into the subject I became convinced that she was sincere in saying she would never marry

"The fact that she says she loves me dearly makes it so much harder for me every time I think of giving her up. But since I know that I'll never win her, don't you think that I ought to give her up now? It would be foolish to waste all my time on her and when I am twenty-five or twenty-six have to start looking for a pal.

"You know the feminine sex well so will you please advise me as to what I should do. Will you tell me why she feels as she does?"

No human being can be absolutely sure why a woman feels as she does in any given case—not even the woman herself, or women seldom understand their own emotions perfectly.

Of this you may be sure, however Your friend is not yet deeply in love with you, even though she says she loves you. If she were in love she would not object to being "tied down." A woman wants to settle down with The Man

One of two possibilities is true Either the girl you love feels merely a friendly affection for you or she loves you a great deal more than she realizes. In either case your decision to give her up is wise But don't break away on cold

Explain to her how hard it is to give up all thought of her as your wife, but how necessary it is to begin to break away from her since your love is hopeless. Be very sweet and friendly in your attitude don't antagonize her.

Of course, it is true that if she doesn't care for you seriously and never can, the sooner you break away and "look for a pal" the better.

But, on the other hand— a though this you must not suggest to her if she loves you more than she realizes, seeing you less often and feeling less sure of your love will awaken her to a realization of how much you mean to her

Ask to Call

Ask to call on her and invite her out now and then—several times a month. Try to hold her friendly confidence throughout this partial separation. Be sure to call on other nice girls, also

After several months or a year ask her once more to be your wife By that time she will know just how much your friendship and love mean to her and whether it is worth while to be "tied down" by her love for you You can safely accept her answer then as final

The battle is not lost, my friend. You have a good fighting chance, provided you let your head as well as your heart govern your efforts to win the girl you love.

CHARACTER IN NOSE

By Maria Jeritza,

WHEN you buy a hat or have your hair trimmed into the latest type of bob, do you always study the shape of your nose in its relation to your profile and all houette? If so, doubtless you ask much in this way to the charm and individuality of your appearance.

Most noses can be made to appear to advantage if they are studied as a beauty problem. A long straight nose adapts itself well to smart up-tilted styles in hats.

But if your nose is too long, avoid a hat with sharp angles. On the other hand, a round face with a retrousse nose looks its best framed in either a sharp-cornered hat or a drooping brim. Balance a snub nose by hair loosely arranged, but without a knob at the back of the neck.

Many modern women have resorted to facial surgery to correct the shape of an over-prominent or ill-shaped nose. And in most cases the results have been most successful

Only the simplest measures are needed to care for the nose. In washing your face be sure to wash your nostrils gently but thoroughly. Otherwise, the soot and dirt not only will look ugly but may be inhaled and will help to clog your nasal passages.

Many women are troubled with large pores and blackheads These troublesome little beauty spots are often more noticeable on the nose than elsewhere. A thorough cleansing of the skin of the nose each night with olive oil and sweet almond oil in equal parts should in time remove the blackheads. Always wipe off the excess of oil with a piece of coarse Turkish toweling

Next morning wash your face and nose with first very warm then very cold water and a Turkish washcloth. The alternating or warm and cold compresses will in time tighten up the coarse pores.

MAKING A HUSBAND

Sequel to "My Romantic Husband."

By Ann Lisle

I LOOKED at my watch. It was a [illegible] If I hurried at top [illegible] make it by midnight But I had no key. What could I say to Diane Petruzzi when I arrived at her apartment in my dishevelled, disreputable condition?

That [illegible] matter. Nothing [illegible] to say! Somebody [illegible] public deuge of wind and rain

I got [illegible] and plodded along again I wondered if this was just a foretaste of my lot. I wondered if the woman whose husband had deserted her [illegible] cares to all other men

I passed [illegible] my thoughts into the background and set my elbows at [illegible] an effort to swing along faster, [illegible] I went. And on and on. My feet [illegible] ached. My head swayed [illegible] I was numb I had walked a [illegible] long the day and [illegible] my feet had been hot and [illegible] tering The cold began to revive [illegible] Presently the pebbled path [illegible] to concrete walk began [illegible] I tried desperately [illegible] ting, found myself [illegible] gave myself, lunged [illegible] against the wall of [illegible] along which I was [illegible] my way.

Fall Stunned Her

My fall stunned me for a moment, but then it awoke me, aroused and stimulated me. With terrific force it came to me that I was on the brink of frightful danger—not from physical causes, not because of any menace from tramps or loafers but because if I collapsed I might be picked up and taken to a detention home or a hospital. I was horrified at the thought of the disgrace and publicity that might follow, and all bruised and battered as I was I hurried forward with the strength of desperation

I walked [illegible] determination [illegible] I could [illegible] Once [illegible] the streets were drying. The wind was cold and merciless in its buffetings. But it was driving my clothes, I decided no attention, but like any poor, bedraggled derelict I went on and on. At last I reached the building where Diane Petruzzi has her studio.

"Madame Petruzzi was called away for two weeks," said the elevator boy as I got into the car, prepared to find comfort in Diane's warm kindness. "She told me to let you know she didn't even have time to write you a note."

"Get the superintendent, please I have no key. I lost my purse—" I began.

"I'm [illegible]" the boy grinned. "[illegible] and it and brought it [illegible] was caught in the [illegible] I to walk, didn't you?"

He grinned. Was it impishly? [illegible] that there was

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR Mrs. BEECKMAN.

What is the proper way to eat asparagus, with your fingers or with your fork?

(2) When a couple is about to go on a dance floor who precedes, the man or the girl?

(3) Who follows the usher at the theatre, also the waiter at the restaurant?

DICK.

EAT asparagus with your fingers. It is too moist to be eaten with a fork.

(2) The girl

(3) In a restaurant, where there is a head waiter, the girl precedes the man. In a theatre, the man may go first or after the girl, as he wishes.

DEAR Mrs. BEECKMAN

When [illegible] I [illegible] a girl [illegible] the sender within a [illegible] it proper to that [illegible] sonally?

If it is necessary to write, what would be a nice, appropriate little letter of thanks?

THANKFUL.

We must show these kind [illegible] [illegible] as to send you graduation gifts, the [illegible] deserve that diploma! Indeed, dear graduate, you must write a note of thanks for the gifts, and not depend on casually meeting the givers on the street and thanking them then. That would be a give away that you did not know what to what, and we can't have that! In a question of this kind it is always better to err on the side of writing too many notes of thanks than of not writing enough. Kind thoughts deserve the most courteous kind of acknowledgment. Promise me that you'll write your thank-you.

(2) Maybe this will suggest a form to you:

Dear Mrs. [illegible]

[illegible] for your goodness [illegible] and friendly thoughtfulness added a beautiful happiness to my graduation day.

"The books are wonderful! I have wanted both of them for a long time, and I added them proudly to my library. I hope that some time you will write your name in the front of them—and that will make them the more precious. They will always bring back the memories of a happy graduation.

THE correct attire for an [illegible] wedding is evening [illegible]

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

About three weeks ago a young man and I had a quarrel. As we were both justified, neither of us owed an apology to the other, but as I like the young man very much and would not care to lose his friendship I wrote a letter apologizing and asking him to call on me. Which he hasn't done as yet. Now, Mrs. Beeckman, would it be proper to invite the young man to a gathering which I intend to give at my home?

BROWN EYED SUSAN.

DO you really think that he deserves to be invited? It seems to me that you have been super generous in your kind attitude, and have done all that you can do with dignity and self-respect. No, on the other

DAILY SHORT STORY

MOLLY MIXES IT

By Jack Woodford

TOM O'CONNOR was the happiest man at the gas house. He told everyone how happy he was until, little by little, with that intuitive understanding of psychology in the more conventional things that even the moron mob possesses, people began to suspect that he was, as a matter of fact, not happy at all in his home life.

If they had been acquainted with the newer psychologists they would doubtless have asserted that Tom O'Connor had built a "defence mechanism," but such was not the case at all. Tom was really extravagantly happy in his home life, for he believed Molly, his young wife of six months, to be "but a little lower than the angels."

Growing Suspicious

At any rate, Tom began to see that down at the gas house they were beginning to take what he said a little suspiciously. One day he was talking to Moriarity, the foreman.

"And would you believe it, sir, that wife of mine be always waiting on the doorstep when I get home, rain or shine, and I give you my word of honor, never a day has passed since we were married but what she's insisted that I kiss her and carry her across the threshold again every time I come in.

"But the wonder of it is, never in all them six months has Molly and me exchanged so much as one little cross word, it's—" the foreman smiled dormally. He liked Tom and thought him the most loyal and accomplished liar in the gas house.

"That's fine, Tom," he said a little amusedly, "yours has been a remarkable marriage."

Not long ago Moriarity had been arrested upon his wife's complaint that he had beaten her. He had been convicted, but at the last moment his wife had begged the judge to let him off, forgiven him, and walked home with her hand in his.

Moriarity believed that this was a normal, wedded condition; which, undoubtedly, it is. Home Sapiens being what he is. Tom caught the nuance in his boss's voice this time and for a moment he was furious; but, suddenly an excellent idea came to him.

Excellent Idea

"Mr. Moriarity, will you come home and have supper with me tonight?"

For a moment Moriarity considered. He had a dreadful encounter with his wife that noon. He had sworn that he would never return home again. It would be a great joke not to come home for supper, she would worry and be penitent when he did come.

"Why sure, Tom, thanks, I'll come, if you think it won't put the wife out any."

"Not at all, me boy, she'll be tickled to death to have my boss eating the food for gods she makes."

And so it was settled and at 6 o'clock Tom and Moriarity set out arm in arm for the former's little shack down by the tracks, much to the jealous amazement of the rest of the gang at the gas house who darkly hinted that Tom was working for a stand in with the boss and it ought to be reported to the Union.

Tom Gulped

At the door to the little shack contrary to all of Tom's enthusiastic predictions, there was no Molly. Wonderingly, with the boss in tow, he opened the door and went in. Molly was standing in the middle of the floor, wearing an expression that Tom had never seen upon her pretty face before. Ignoring the boss, she started talking in a voice no necessity of it, for suddenly Molly had changed completely. She was in all smiles and solicitation.

"Tom, you no 'count, worthless bum, I'm going to leave your house this minute and never return to it again."

Tom gulped and swallowed painfully. He felt the boss standing behind him. How amazed that individual would be, and yet the boss was the least surprised of the three. Only he had found what he had fully expected to find.

Tom had a bright idea. He would walk over to her and kiss her, surely that would bring her out of her awful trance. He tried to kiss her and she slapped him. The tingling blow made Tom's mind reach back into a long line of ancestry.

"Look where you little wench, if you don't be after behaving yourself like a lady and a wife should, I'll knock the bloody block off'n you."

His advanced threateningly, but the boss interposed, still, there was

Spilled the Salt

"There, thank goodness that's over, Tom dear. You'll forgive me won't you? You see, this morning I spilled a whole box of salt on the floor, and though I have been throwing salt over both shoulders all day long 'til the floor was covered with it, yet I was afraid that we'd have an awful fight.

"So I says to myself, 'the minute the dear boy comes into the house, I'll pick a small fight with him, and it will be over with then and I'll not be fearin'."

Tom heaved a great sigh of relief and they sat down to supper laughing. But to this day the boss still looks at Tom queerly when he tries to tell about what a happy home life he do be having.

LAST week of the Funnies. The new game has caught on and families all over New England are busy filling in the blank spaces and making their own comics.

The results have been more than good and much humor has been uncovered from unexpected sources. If you have not tried yet, get busy and send one in. Only this week left to win a prize.

Don't hesitate to try your hand at filling in words for the pictures offered on this page at the left. There may be a vein of unsuspected humor somewhere in your make-up. Give it a chance to develop.

Take the strip today. A boy is sent to the grocer's and returns laden with bundles, evidently to the surprise of his mother. Why is she surprised? Did he get more than she ordered, or are they the wrong articles? You tell. We do not know the answer. That is up to you. Give your imagination free rein and, above all, be snappy.

Strive to secure the first prize of $5. The other prizes are: second, $3; third, $2, and five more of $1 each.

Forty-eight hours from midnight tonight will be allowed in which to mail your completed comics. The purpose of this rule is to give the contestant in Northern Maine an equal opportunity with the contestant living one mile from the Boston Evening American office. And remember this, fans—we don't care WHO wins.

FUNNIES PRIZE WINNERS FOR AUG. 26

The following are the names of those picked as prize winners for Picture No. 9 of the Funnies Contest which appeared in the Boston Evening American of Wednesday, August 26:

FIRST PRIZE, $5—Winnifred Cox, 26 Reedsdale street, Allston, Mass.

SECOND PRIZE, $3—Howard Donovan, 7 Long's court, Amesbury, Mass.

THIRD PRIZE, $2—Miss Grace Coughlin, 22 Albin street, Concord, N. H.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland.

SOMEHOW, a girl feels that a man has no right to save her life, when the canoe tips over—unless he is going to make the REST of it worth while, by falling in love with her.

• • •

The only woman who is immune to a second attack of matrimony seems to be the one who is still suffering from the effects of the first.

The greatest Helen Rowland miracle of marriage is the apparent ease with which it turns a twelve o'clock lover into a nine o'clock husband.

As an instrument for keeping father at home evenings, and at the same time making him feel as though he had not "missed anything," the radio is certainly an angel in a terrible disguise.

• • •

The average girl pictures her ideal husband as one who will be as hard-working as a Kansas mule, as dependable as a mountain burro, and as devoted and fond of play as a circus pony.

• • •

The girl who will cheerfully plunge into the breakers and sink or swim beside a man somehow never gets a husband quite so quickly or easily as the one who is looking for "a big, strong man" to lift her over the waves of life's troubles, and tell her how cute she looks.

HELPED THROUGH CHANGE OF LIFE

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during this Critical Time

Baltimore, Md.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to help me through the Change of Life and for a broken-down system. I had been complaining a long time and dragging along but tried other medicines which did not help me much. I read in the newspapers of the Vegetable Compound and after taking a bottle I felt better. I did not stop with one bottle, but took it through the whole critical time and am now practically a well woman. I have two daughters whose health was very bad before they married and I was worried about them. I got the Vegetable Compound for them and it helped them, and after they married it also helped them in bearing their babies. This is a great and good medicine for all complaints of women, and I recommend it to all."—Mrs. L. GINGRICH, 1705 N. Gilmor St., Baltimore, Maryland.

The Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for women of middle age. Let it relieve you of nervousness, that feeling of strain and those annoying hot flashes so common at this time.

ESME AND HIS STAND

By Lucy Lowell

ESME comes to the fore again.

Esme is the kid who learned, on his first day at public school, that he was NOT the centre of the universe.

It almost killed mother and aunts. But daddy said "Atta boy," and bought him a pair of boxing gloves.

This time it was a matter of a bloody nose—Esme's—a long, red scratch across the cheek — also Esme's—and a shocking dishevelled appearance generally that he brought into the house which sent mother and auntie into hysteria and caused them to vow, for the second time, that he'd never, never go back to that horrid old school again!

"Yes," said Esme, "I'll go back. I like school. I like it better than home."

"Oh, Esme," sobbed mother, "don't you love your home, where everything is so sweet and refined?"

"What is 'refined,' mother? Does that mean sorta sissy? Guess I don't like it. I'm not mad at the kid that licked me, mother, I guess he thought he was doing all right!"

And this was all they could get out of him until daddy came home.

Daddy hadn't much to say while the women folk were around. But after dinner he took his son for a stroll down by the river, where all sorts of unrefined and diverting things were to be seen.

"What happened, old scout?"

"Why, nothing much, daddy. You see they were jumping mud-puddles. And I kind of didn't like to get all wet. It was awful dirty water."

"Oh, so you didn't play and one of the fellows didn't like it?"

"Yes. He called me 'Molly' again. And we got to scrappin' about that. Then he hit me."

"And you didn't hit back?"

"Oh, no, daddy." Esme flushed. "Maybe I couldn't have licked him. He was bigger'n me. I could have punched him hard once or twice. But you see mother made me promise not to fight."

"Oh." Silence.

"Daddy, do you think women understand men?"

"I wonder! What I think, old fellow, is that fighting isn't much of a pastime.

"But sometimes you have to meet other folk on their own ground. If a man came up to me and poked my nose I sort of think I'd hit back!"

"You mean that I should have cleaned up on him after he started it, daddy?"

"That's the general idea, son!"

THE HELPING HAND

Obliged to Go Hungry

Helping Hand Editor:

I am the mother of five children, boys, 13, 10 and 4, and girls, 11 and 20 months old, and I expect the stork again. My husband has been without work since April and the City pays our rent and gives us $4 for food, which of course is small for seven to thrive on. My milkman refuses to trust me any longer and the two small children need milk badly. If some of your kind readers would help us out with food and clothing it would be greatly appreciated. It is awful to go hungry like we do. Also some old bedclothes would be welcome. I am handy with the needle.

MRS. E. B.

Rugs Requested

Helping Hand Editor:

My husband is sick and unable to walk. We live in two rooms on the ground floor and would be very grateful for a couple of discarded rugs to keep the floors warm. Would also be glad to get a few clothes for my boy 7 and overcoat size 42 or 44, and a comforter for the bed.

MRS. W. V. P.

Needs Work Badly

Helping Hand Editor:

My husband needs work badly. Isn't there some kind reader who could get him a position as caretaker on some estate? He can do all kinds of gardening, and is a good all-round man. We have three children.

MRS. J. S.

Very Discouraged

Helping Hand Editor:

I can hardly write I am so discouraged. My husband met with an accident a week ago, badly cutting arm, hand, etc., and it is such a long time since he has had steady work. It will cost so much for the children to go back to school I can make over anything, and 6-year-old girl's clothing will fit them both, also 3 shoes. The baby, 1¼ years old, hasn't any clothing for the cold weather. I wear size 5½ or 6½, husband 40 or 42. Please help us, for we sure need it now.

Mrs. R. S.

Nine to Feed

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a soldier's widow with six little children, girls 4 and 6, boys 8, 4, 3½ and 1 year old. I get $29 a week pension, but it is hard to buy clothes out of this, with nine to feed and rent to pay. I have my father and mother with me. Would appreciate clothing for the children and some old quilts or blankets. Please try and help me just a little.

MRS. F. B.

Stroller Wanted

Helping Hand Editor:

My little boy, 15 months old, has just come home from the hospital and we must keep him out of doors. A stroller or small carriage would certainly be a godsend to us. We are actually destitute for every thing, especially myself and husband. I wear size 36-6½, shoe, and husband, size 32 or 34, shoe 7. The ages of the children are, boys 5 and 10 months old, girls 7, 8 and 9. A coat and dress for myself would be so welcome so I can take the baby out. I have nothing but patched-up house aprons.

MRS. M. M.

Has Heart Trouble

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a widow with heart trouble. I am greatly in need of a bed complete, bedclothes and a cook stove, also clothes, size 38. I haven't any underwear at all. I will greatly appreciate any help.

BUSINESS IN NEW ENGLAND QUICKENS

The leading industries of New England have recently fared much better than these same industries in other sections of the country, the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston states in its monthly business review. For example, New England mills consumed more cotton in July than in June, but the mills in the cotton-growing states consumed less. The woolen mills in this district increased their consumption of raw wool quite noticeable in July, but competing mills in the middle Atlantic states showed a further decline in activity. Even the New England shoe industry, which has been so adversely affected by trade conditions in the past two years, had a greater production in July than in June, contrasted with a slight decline in production by the shoe factories in the remainder of the country.

Canadian government has sold to Chase Securities Corporation and Blair & Co., of New York, $70,000,000 one-year 4 per cent. treasury gold notes due Sept. 1926, proceeds of which will be used in connection with retirement of one-year notes held in United States amounting to $30,000,000 and maturing Sept. 15, 1925. Balance of $20,000,000 will be paid out of cash now on hand account of treasury. Notes sold to New York bankers are redeemable at option of government on March 1, 1926 and thereafter at par and accrued interest on 30 days' notice.

The possibility of Pennsylvania Railroad raising new capital funds through the sale of stock, is under discussion. The favorable sentiment aroused by the road's very creditable July, the most profitable month in several years, is said to have encouraged the Pennsylvania executives to plan for an additional issue of stock.

The month of July again shows gains in gross revenue and net operating income for Southern Railway. The estimated earnings for July are equivalent to $1.14 per share of common stock as compared with $0.66 per share for July 1924. For the seven months, earnings are estimated at $6.47 per share as against $4.76 per share for the corresponding period of 1924.

The New York Stock Exchange now has listed for active trading the record total of 939 common and preferred stock issues. Seventy-three new stocks have been admitted to trading so far this year. The general improvement in business during the past year, Stock Exchange members say, has encouraged the growth of new enterprises, while the broadened public participation in the financial market has stimulated the demand for the listing of additional securities.

Fall hardware trade will be very active, according to reports received from hardware jobbers in the several important market centres." "The Hardware Age states. "This prediction has been based largely on the unusually heavy volume of future orders placed during the month of August."

ASSOCIATED GAS SALES GAIN

In connection with offering of 6½ per cent interest-bearing option warrants to stockholders and bondholders, Associated Gas & Electric Co. has informed holders of 6½ per cent secured convertible gold bonds, due 1954, that these will be accepted in payment for option warrants on basis of $1,000 bond for 80 option warrants, $35 paid. This is equivalent to $100 flat for these bonds, the same price at which they are callable, plus accrued interest.

Holders of these bonds who do not elect to make such exchange are entitled to rights to buy 11 option warrants at $35 paid.

Holders of 6½ per cent debentures, Manila Series A, are entitled to rights to buy six option warrants. Holders of 5½ per cent debentures, Manila Series B and C, are each entitled to rights to buy five option warrants. The 6* per cent Manila debenture series, however, will not be accepted in payment for option warrants.

Operating properties of Associated Gas & Electric Co., exclusive of Manila Electric and Pennsylvania Electric recently acquired, report net sales of electric current for first six months this year totaling $4,818,000 kwh., an increase of 7,054,000 or 9 per cent. over the same period of 1924. Of this total, 88,900,000 kwh. were sold for power, an increase of 2,956,000 over 1924.

Gas sales for first six months were 2,237,000 cubic feet, 41,067,000 or 18 per cent greater than first half of 1924. Sales of gas for industrial purposes more than doubled during this period, from 24,559,000 cubic feet to 50,339,000.

Wall Street Gossip

THE VAN SWERINGEN interests have commenced negotiations, according to a minority interest of Chesapeake Corp., with a view of reaching a settlement on terms of exchange offered Chesapeake & Ohio stockholders.

BORNE-SCRYMSER declared an ex-tra dividend of $4 and regular semi-annual of $4. Six months ago an extra dividend of $3 was paid.

GENERAL GAS & Electric consoli-dated statement for 12 months ended July 31, follows: Gross earnings, $20,078,388; total income, $6,876,026, after expenses, depreciation and reserves; net income, $2,924,451 after all interest charges and amortization of debt, discount and expenses.

ROCK ISLAND net operating in-come for 12 months ending July represents earnings of 6.3 per cent. on common, with no call for preferred stock, on seasonal basis, shows earnings at annual rate of 6.7 per cent on common, against actual earnings of 4.4 per cent. for the year 1924.

CHICAGO YELLOW Cab Co., for quarter ended June 30, reports net profit of $852,911 after depreciation and federal taxes, equivalent to $1.31 a share on no-par shares, against $615,858 of $1.59 a share in preceding quarter.

AMERICAN LINSEED is without bank loans and is lending about $4,000,000 in the call money market. Company will pay $6,000,000 10-year serial notes some months ago to clean up borrowing and now has more cash than it needs. Profits in the first six months of this year were equal to about $7 a share on $18,750,000 7 per cent. preferred.

TIDE WATER OIL declared an ini-tial dividend of 25 cents on new no-par stock. This is equal to regular quarterly rate of 50 cents on old $100-par stock, which was split 4 for 1.

Refiners. What is your opinion?

Ans.—You could not "invest" in Producers & Refiners because it is not investment. The advice your intimate friends are giving you is on a parity with the usual advice friends give. They probably know less about securities than you do. Advice on a specific speculation is less than worthless.

Replies to Investors

$40,000 TO INVEST.

Mrs. A. L.—I have $40,000 to invest. I own 200 New York Central at 73. Should I sell it? Have been advised to buy Philadelphia Company, but am waiting for your answer before doing anything.

Ans.—New York Central at the price you paid was indeed a bargain. A person who was accustomed in buying in 100-share lots might well retain it despite the profit. If it were the only stock you had we should tell you to sell a good part of your holding in it and distribute the proceeds over several issues. But since you can invest $40,000 at a time, it might be as well to buy in 100-share lots. You could replace your New York Central to 109 shares and buy 115 Southern Pacific. This would give an income of $690 in place of the $700 from 100 New York Central. Philadelphia Company does not rank with these two rails. In fact, we should rather have Public Service of New Jersey 7 per cent preferred. But do not put all of the $40,000 in a single issue. Buy 100 shares of Public Service preferred and 100 shares each General American Tank Car preferred, Union Pacific and Pennsylvania Railroad. This will give an income of $2,000 from an investment of $39,800.

INITIAL INVESTMENT.

To S. B.—With the first $100 I have saved I wish to buy a bond. The yield should be 5½ per cent or 6 per cent, the term at least ten years and the bond a perfect-safe investment. I will give a coupon bond, if that form is more convenient to buy. The purchase price plus accrued interest should not be more than $1,000.

Ans.—You have a very clear concept of what you seek, and you are right in seeking security. No bond is absolutely safe, even Liberty bonds. But for the sum of $100 it is scarcely worth your while today to buy a bond. The place for your first $100 is in the savings bank. Don't let anyone persuade you to withdraw it for any security. Just keep on adding to it until you have saved $1,000 or $1,500. Then you will have enough for investment in securities without exhausting your bank balance.

ADVICE OF FRIENDS.

F. B.—I have several thousand dollars I am thinking of putting into stocks, preferably common stocks. As one with a good, steady income I believe I could well afford to speculate. I have been advised to invest in Producers &

DELICIOUS WAYS TO SERVE HEALTH BRAN

SEPTEMBER 1.—Where has the summer gone?

Soon we will have to think about getting the youngsters off to school and then before we get our breath, we will have the problem of buying a winter coat.

Today's subject has a rather fallish tint and it's one I have been asked to talk about by several people—"Delicious Ways to Serve Health Bran."

Most of us seem to realize that bran is What Chance Has a Clerk in a Store?

The Chance to Know Human Beings, Learn Business, Become Independent and Rich

Hundreds of the future rich, powerful and useful men of this country are working now as clerks in stores.

Thousands of young women that in future will be independent, well equipped, able to take care of themselves, are working in the stores side by side with the young men.

The boys and girls of this country should realize that the modern store is the modern business college.

What a man or woman needs to advance in the world and succeed in business is supplied by conscientious work in the well-managed store.

To succeed you must know your fellow men. You see them and study them in the STORE as you can do nowhere else.

Their weaknesses are displayed, their curious dispositions revealed.

The young man or woman standing behind the counter, alert, attentive, observing, can learn more of human nature in one week than the lawyer could learn in a year. The young clerk has twenty "clients" in a day. The young lawyer one in a month.

The customer, eagerly shopping, is off guard; you see the real and undisgused human nature. You see humanity as it is.

To succeed in business you must learn how to deal with human beings. It is not only that which is within you that gives success, but that which is in others—and you must learn to understand it, and so far as you need it, you must learn to get it.

Business success is the art of persuasion, the art of making friends, the art of producing a good impression.

These arts you learn in the modern store as nowhere else.

Fathers and mothers of intelligent boys and girls should realize that what the son or daughter needs to be equipped for the world's battle is knowledge of the world and the people in it.

While working in the store that knowledge is obtained safely. The young worker, the girl especially, works under the eyes of those interested in her welfare and development.

She comes in contact with men and women of the outside world under right conditions. They want something; she is there to supply it. She goes from her home to her work and from her work to her home, safely and regularly.

Suppose you wanted your son or daughter to learn a business, which is really to learn commercial methods and human nature, and suppose that a friend said to you:

"I will take your son under my direction and observation. I will bring him in contact every day with dozens of different types of citizens—the very rich, the middle class, the classes with whom he must deal later in life, on his own account. I will make him acquainted with values, with merchandise, with methods of salesmanship, with the importance of regularity, attention, politeness. All this I will do day after day, giving him the opportunity to become a finished merchant. And while I am teaching him I will pay him, and I will look after him carefully as long as he is in my charge, give him the opportunity that I lacked when I was young—opportunity to see quickly and learn quickly all that business life is."

You would readily accept such an offer, would you not, for your son, for your daughter?

That is the offer held out by the owner of the good, well-managed store today.

Every such store is a business college. It is to the ordinary business college what a real newspaper is to a school of journalism. You can learn something in a business college and something in a school of journalism. But to be a business man you must be in a business, to be a newspaper man you must be on a newspaper.

Somebody said that a drop of salt water represented the whole Pacific Ocean, since it was only made up of such drops.

A well-managed store represents the whole world of business and is the best place for a business education, for one good store is a business world.

Young men and women, be attentive and ambitious in your store work, and success will come.

Speed or Safety?

English Inventor Promises Locomotive That Will Pull a Train 120 Miles an Hour

Railroads are promised by William Werry of London a locomotive that will set a new record for speed. The inventor uses a cylinder with two pistons working in opposite directions, each driving its own crank to attain a train velocity of more than 120 miles an hour.

The invention may add to the speed of English express trains, but American railroad excutives are subordinating speed to safety these days. The Twentieth Century and the Broadway Limited jaunt between New York and Chicago on a twenty-hour schedule, although a few years ago eighteen hours was the guaranteed time.

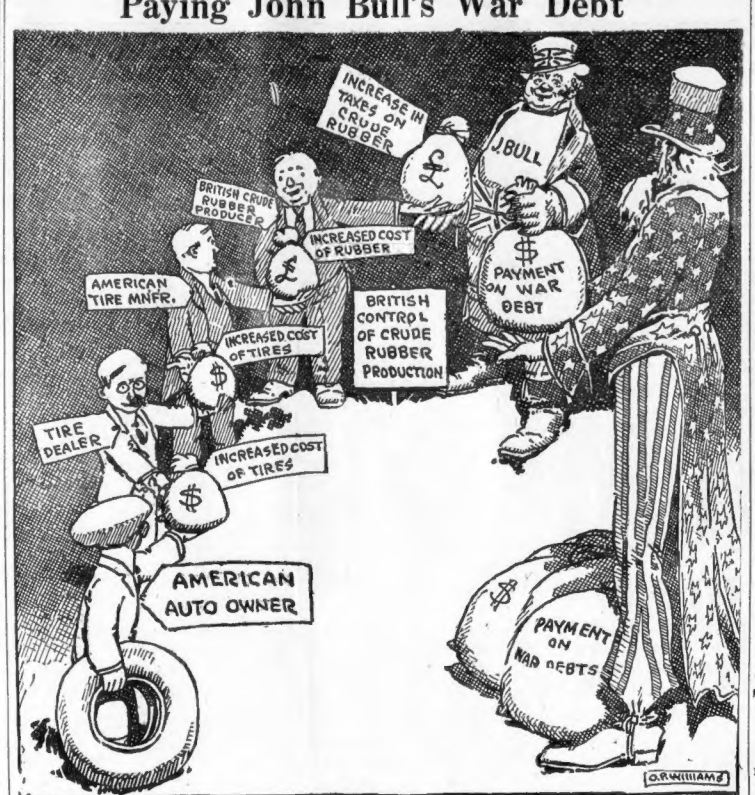
If speed were the chief consideration, the run might be made in fifteen hours, but the terrific wear and tear on equipmen and the multiplication of hazard slowed down the schedule. After all, what would be the use when an airplane can carry passengers in a third of the best train time?

Less Clothing, More Health?

Scientists of the University of Chicago suggest that health and strength will be conserved by less clothing. Other scientists, also, advocate the exposure of the body to sunlight as far as possible.

But questions arise. How little is less clothing? How far is possible? The interrogations may be answered easily when the sun is shining torridly in Summer, but the thought of a threatening coal strike this Winter will make the hardiest enthusiast in the back-to-nature movement hesitate.

Paying John Bull's War Debt



OUR French friends need not worry about how to pay their debt to us. Last year France sold abroad $28,017,450 more than she had to buy. That means that real money is going into France. Money that can be used to pay debts. Besides this, American tourists spent several hundred millions of dollars in France.

Great Britain funded its debts with its visible trade balance unfavorable. But American tire users are contributing enough dollars to pay the charges. Great Britain has control of almost all the supply of raw rubber, while the United States is the chief user of the finished product. John Bull, by practically fixing the price of crude rubber, can pay instalments on his war debt to America.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

RITA declares she isn't maternal.

"Of course I love Jerome and the children," she says, smoothing her boyish bob and lighting a cigarette, "but I have no intention of letting them absorb my life. That sort of thing is bad for children and disastrous for the mother.

"There is really nothing beautiful in the old-fashioned conception of mother love. It was simply a reflection of woman's economic slavery. She was nothing but a bond servant. There was no pride or dignity in her service. The new idea is so much better for everyone. Both of the children call me 'Rita' and treat me as they would a big sister. We are perfect comrades but I have never fussed over them and I never shall."

The Eternal Mother

Rita is cool and charming and marvelously efficient. Her home is always in shining order, her budget is never scrambled, her program never slops over the edges. Her own life and all the lives in her charge move with clocklike regularity.

And yet I wonder if there isn't something lacking in this nickel-plated perfection—something warm and vitalizing—something that turns program into adventures and men into gods. I wonder if those "old fashioned" mothers didn't grip a greater power than any Rita manipulates despite their "economic dependence."

I was reading about one the other day. It was in Harry Foster's book, "A BEACHCOMBER IN THE ORIENT." Two young men had been tramping through the jungle; they were at the breaking point from fatigue and heat. Suddenly, after agonizing hours, they sighted an isolated thatched, but with a shady porch.

Accepted Offerings

"We staggered toward it," writes the author, "dropped upon its bamboo floor and collapsed.

"A native woman found us there. She was an aged hag, with white hair and wrinkled face. She was small and extremely thin; her bare legs beneath a short skirt were pipe-stems; her breasts hung naked like strips of parchment; the skin clung tightly to her skull-like cheeks; her teeth, protruding beyond her withered brown lips, were black.

"Ugly? Never had I seen such an apparition. It was as though we had come upon a messenger of death.

"But she brought us cocoanuts. Squatting upon her skinny heels she split them open with a knife. She raised our dizzy heads and poured the cooling beverage down our parched throats. And as she ministered to our needs there came into her slanting eyes a kindliness that transformed her into a thing of beauty. It was the spirit of the eternal mother, which recognized no distinction of creed or color.

"And Henri and I, who despised and scorned the yellow race, accepted her offerings and blessed that little mother. Then, having blessed her, we slept upon her bamboo floor, until Henri's dogs announced the coming of our caravan by licking us frantically in the face."

I am thinking too of another old mother whom I know. She was a great, brawny Italian woman living in an almost deserted mining camp on the Mother Lode, in the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

Garden work and mining, however, were the least of her achievements. For twenty years she had brought into life every mountain babe in that district and had prepared for death every worn human shell. Nothing daunted her. She had walked ten miles through the blazing sun to care for a lonely prospector down with smallpox, and stayed with him through appalling hours, until he was able to fend for himself. She had fought fire on the hills one day and taught her small daughter to hemstitch on the next. Her home was a mere huddle of scrubbed boards, yet to have eaten polenta under the vine on the damp sweet earth of her yard was to have feasted with the epicureans. And from her, as from the earth, there emanated healing and refreshment.

That old jungle woman—my grandson of the Mother Lode—I suppose they were the products of "economic dependence." And yet I wonder if Rita will ever grip as they have done?

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

THE one thing in the world which is more discouraging than a person who can play the piano and won't, is the person who can't play and does.

A FEW pianists are born, some of them are made, but most of them should be prevented.

ANYBODY can become a musician. The neighbors will be glad to send you abroad.

YOU can pound the piano all you want in Europe and it isn't going to disturb anybody over there.

ONE man sent his three daughters to Hamburg. He didn't care if they kept Germany awake.

ALL he wanted was some sleep in this country.

HE USED to make all three of them play at the same time so that they'd get through quicker.

WHENEVER they played a piece of music he made them ignore the resis.

THE three of them could finish four songs while the electric piano was still playing one.

BY HAVING them work together he got an hour's music in ten minutes.

THE magazine advertisements claim that you can become popular overnight by learning to play the piano. Maybe you can, but not in your own neighborhood.

ONE guy had to hire a policeman while his daughter practiced the scales.

BUT his daughter played so badly that he had to hire another officer to watch the policeman.

BOTH the cops listened to one piece and then struck for more money.

THE society for the prevention of cruelty to animals even made him keep the dog out of the parlor while his daughter was playing.

SHE had promises of making a good pianist but she broke her promises.

SHE always practised in the living room and her father had to build a fence in front of the piano to keep the rocks from scratching it.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

IN the land of Long Ago dwelt a lad I used to know. In that region's sunny clime where bright hours moved to rhyme, ever good and ever gay was the burden of each day, ever touched with April's spell was the charm of hill and dell. Splendid fellowship he knew, ardent loyal brotherhood. Theirs to comrades brave and true; knightlike, every test they stood in that share each passing smart that might touch his boyish heart, theirs to all his joys to add . . . lucky, lucky little lad! True, that time was long ago; boyhood's fires no longer glow, yet those far flames cast their rays through the long years' mist and haze. All of truth seems brighter now for its crown on Youth's fair brow; better, all of good I know for the faith of Long Ago!

CHERRIES VARY MUCH LIKE MEN

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ON my way down town this morning two signs on a fruit stand set me thinking.

One read: "Sour Cherries—Two pounds for 25 cents."

The other: "Extra Sweet Cherries—35 cents a pound."

I looked at the two boxes.

The cherries in one looked much like those in the other. Both had stems, both were of the same color and both were about the same size.

There was nothing external to make one worth about three times as much as the other.

The value of the high-priced cherries lay in something you could not see, feel or smell. It became evident only at the time of test, only when you bit into one. It was flavor.

This set me thinking about men and how some are great and powerful and others insignificant and impotent; how some humans if they were cherries instead of two-legged animals would be classed as sour cherries selling at a cheap price and others as extra sweet cherries at a fancy price.

From the outside, in these men, you can oftentimes see little difference. It is only when the test comes that the distinction is made apparent.

Later in the morning the thought returned when I met a young man not yet thirty who held a high place as a foreign correspondent for a newspaper syndicate.

To look at him he appeared much like any other bright young man. There was no way to tell his capacity to handle big responsibilities until you saw him put to the test.

"Do you know," he said, "I get more fun than in anything else in the world in letting people think that I am just an unimportant kid and then working my head off to put over something big."

You never can tell what is going on inside a head by looking at it. You never fully know until a test comes.

But what goes on inside a man's head is to the man what the flavor is to the cherry.

It is evident when the test comes and it places him either in the sour or the fancy priced extra sweet group.

THE SECRET OF THE GREEN RAY

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

ONE of the most beautiful and most rarely seen phenomena of sunset and sunrise is the "green ray." Those who have seen it at its best seek to find no words that seem capable of describing, at the same time, its beauty and its strangeness. It consists of a luminous segment, sometimes of intense brilliance, and usually of a splendid green color which appears for a second or two just at the edge of the sun's disk as it sinks out of sight at sunset, or is about to emerge from behind the horizon at sunrise.

The order sometimes is blue and on rare occasions, violet. These are colors of the solar spectrum, which are separated by the dispersive refraction of the atmosphere, which is both strong and variable close to the horizon.

General Effect

The general effect of atmospheric refraction is to bend a ray of light coming from the horizon downward so that the source from which the light emanates appears to be lifted upward.

On the average the refraction close to the horizon causes a change of rather more than half a degree in the direction of the light rays, and since the sun and the moon are each about half a degree in diameter the effect of refraction is to cause them to appear poised on the horizon when in reality they are just below it. Refraction must be allowed for in all astronomical, geodetic, or navigation observations.

But in addition to bending the whole light coming from a luminous object, the atmosphere is capable, in certain circumstances, of dispersing elementary colors of the light, like a prism. The greatest dispersion is experienced by the short waves toward the blue and violet end of the spectrum, and the least by the longer waves toward the red end.

When the source of light is a bright point, like a star near the horizon, the effect of this dispersion is to draw out the light into a narrow vertical band, or little ribbon, of sparkling colors, blue appearing at the top and red at the bottom. With a very bright star, like Sarius, something of this spectral display can be caught with the naked eye, but it is greatly enhanced when viewed with a telescope.

Now, the appearance of the "green ray" on the limb of the setting or rising run arises from the same cause. But the sun being a broad luminous disk, the spectral colors due to dispersion overlap, except at the upper and lower edges, the colors of the short-wave, or violet, group appearing above, and those of the long-wave, or red, group below.

This is indicated in the accompanying sketch, which I have redrawn from "La Nature." Here the setting (or rising) sun is shown by a double circle, one element of which is entirely below the horizon, while the other slightly projects above it.

The lower circle, with the centre "R" may be called the red image of the sun, and the higher one with the centre "V," the violet image, both produced by atmospheric dispersion, as above explained. But ordinarily the phenomenal ray is green, not violet.

The explanation of this is that the blue and violet waves, both progressively shorter than the green, are scattered and lost in the impure atmosphere of the horizon, but the green waves penetrate it and thus cause the appearance of the green ray.

With a Telescope

When the phenomenon is viewed with a telescope, under exceptionally favorable conditions, a succession of colored rays may be seen—first green, then blue, finally violet—which order, if the sun is setting, accords with the positions that the corresponding colors should occupy by dispersive refraction.

Such a display was witnessed by L. Rodaux with a telescope magnifying 100 diameters, when the atmosphere at sunset was extraordinarily transparent. The green ray, the first seen, melted into blue, and then blue changed into violet.

In order that the ray may be seen at all it is necessary that the horizon be uncommonly clear.

Why do you talk so much?

A lot of thoughtless chatter is worse than useless.

At brief periods you have serious thoughts, but you soon revert to your light and flutter-budget ways.

You get along, but you have never made great strides.

You cannot point to anything out of the ordinary that you have ever done, and in your sober moments you conclude that it is not in you to be anything more than commonplace.

All the way through life you have trailed to avoid the hard things, so now you are reaping the result.

As you grow older you will regret the years and years you have wasted.
